Seven stitches in face after random assault

Police investigation into two town centre attacks by gang of 'three or four' men

By Tom Bage
tom.bage@essexlive.news

A MAN who was attacked by a group of people in the centre of Harlow on Saturday has 'needed stitches' for his facial injuries.

The 21-year-old man was attacked around 1.30am on March 24 by a group of men as he made his way from The William Aylmer Wetherspoons pub to go to Tasty Grill in Market Square.

Jumped

Essex Police have said that they are investigating two assaults in the town, with a second man in his 20s reporting that he had also been assaulted in Market Street.

A woman who knows one of the victims said he was "jumped by three or four men" in the attack.

She said: "The police took the info from the victim, the attackers were not caught, I'm not sure if they were pursued.

"But it's all a blur to him as he sustained a lot of injuries to the face.

"He received seven stitches above his right eye, has two black eyes and a swollen face. He doesn't know the attackers and it wasn't provoked."

A spokesman for Essex Police said: "We are investigating after two people were assaulted in Harlow.

"A man in his 20s reported being assaulted in Market Square and another man, also in his 20s, reported he had been assaulted in Market Street, by a group of people at around 1.25am on Saturday, March 24.

"If you have any information about either incident please contact us on 101 quoting the crime reference number 42/39860/18 and 42/39861/18 or Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111."

MUSIC QUINTET

THE CLARK TRACEY QUINTET: MARIGOLDS JAZZ CLUB, HARLOW CRICKET CLUB, MARIGOLDS, CHIPPINGFIELD, OLD HARLOW, ESSEX, CM17 0DJ, FRIDAY, MARCH 30, 7.30PM

Clark Tracey (drums), Alexandra Ridout (trumpet), Sean Payne (alto sax), Elliot Sansom (keyboards) and James Owston (bass) take to the stage. Clark grew up in a jazz environment as the son of Stan Tracey CBE, the UK's leading jazz pianist, and from an early age played piano and vibraphones. At 13 he started playing the drums and he turned professional at 17 in 1978 by joining his father's various ensembles, from trio to orchestra. He formed his first group in 1981 and has since collaborated with far too many jazz luminaries to name. He has played freelance with some of the most important artists in jazz both at home and abroad, again far too many to include here. Clark has toured the UK and worldwide performing in over 50 countries bringing him numerous awards including best drummer in the British Jazz Awards in 2016 and 2017. He has recorded extensively making over 90 albums and in 2001 he began his own record company, Tentoten Records and in 2007 he formed Resteamed Records, a label dedicated to his father's works. Not contented with just performing, Clark regularly composes and arranges not just for his own groups but for numerous other artists and ensembles.

Chief nurse's appeal as 63 per cent of patients dealt with in under four hours

Target for A&E waits at hospital is missed

By Lottie O'Neill

newsdesk@hertsexnews.co.uk

HOSPITALS across Essex are under "extreme pressures" as A&E waiting times miss the NHS target.

Meanwhile, a chief nurse has sent out a video plea, urging patients to only visit emergency departments for life-threatening injuries and illnesses.

The latest figures from NHS England show that one in three patients are spending more than four hours in the Accident and Emergency department (A&E).

Not a single trust in the county hit the performance target in February this year.

Doctor Nancy Fontaine, chief nurse and deputy chief executive at Princess Alexandra Hospital, Harlow, told the public on Twitter that patients who are critically ill are coming into the hospital every hour.

She said that the pressure on staff is higher when patients are using the service who do not need emergency health care.

At Princess Alexandra Hospital, just 63.1 per cent of patients who attended the trust's emergency departments last month were discharged, admitted or transferred within four hours of arriving. This is the worst performance locally.

The current target is for 95 per cent of patients to be either discharged, transferred or admitted with four hours of arriving.

Furthermore, performance across all of the trust's A&Es and minor injury centres were as low as 63.1 per cent, with the trust recording its worst performance since June 2015.

In December, figures showed that Princess Alexandra Hospital had the longest A&E waiting times in all of England.

While the centre has improved, it performed the worst across the country that month last year.

Mid Essex Trust had the next poorest performance, with 77.9 per cent of patients waiting less than four hours.

Overall, the trust reached 78.8 per cent of patients on average, still below the national target.

At Southend University Hospital eight in ten patients waited less than four hours in major A&E departments.

Best

Basildon and Thurrock saw 83.3 per cent of patients in the target time, whereas Colchester Hospital was the best performing trust in the area, with 87.5 per cent of all patients waiting less than four hours in major A&E departments, and nine out of ten waiting less than four hours overall.

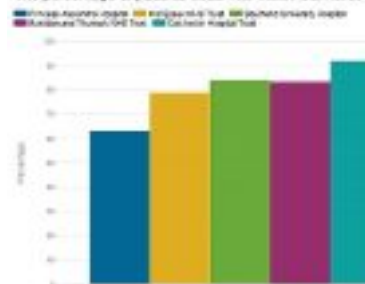

Across England, nearly a quarter of patients attending major A&E departments waited more than four hours from their arrival to discharge, admission or transfer in February.

The England average stands at 76.9 per cent for all major A&Es, and 85 per cent overall, which is the worst performance since records began in August 2010.

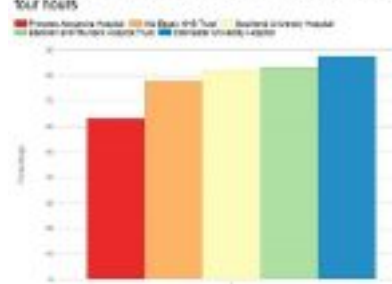

Dr Taj Hassan, president of the Royal College of Emergency Medicine, said: "Unfortunately these STEPHANIE Lawton, chief operating officer at the Princess Alexandra Hospital NHS Trust, said: "We are working closely with GPs, community partners and social care to speed up the transfer of care for patients who can return home with support. "Currently we are unable to balance the number of patients already occupying our beds with the needs of new patients arriving with complex needs."

PAH RESPONSE

"I am urging everyone to consider the most appropriate treatment choice for their condition.

"It should be remembered that the first port of call for non-emergencies and when your GP surgery is closed, is the NHS 111 service which you can access for free from your landline or mobile by simply dialing 111.

"A member of the team will assess you, provide advice and direct you to the local service that can help you best.

"They're available 24 hours a day, seven days a week, 365 days a year."

figures are not surprising and reflect the acute and detrimental effect insufficient resources are having on our health service; patient care will continue to suffer until this changes.

"Performance that once would have been regarded as utterly unacceptable has now become normal and things are seemingly only getting worse for patients.

"It's important to remember that while performance issues are more pronounced during the winter, emergency departments are now struggling all year round.

"Warnings and pleas for adequate resources have repeatedly failed to deliver with both patients and staff suffering as a result. We cannot continue in this situation - which is why we are calling on patients to contact their MP in support of our A&Es and the NHS.

"He said the crisis was not the fault of patients or because of staff not working hard enough or due to the weather or other external factors, but due to a failure to increase healthcare funding."

Princess Alexandra Hospital said: "The NHS is experiencing a growing demand for urgent care services and this is no different at The Princess Alexandra Hospital NHS Trust.

"Demand on the local hospital's emergency department has been very high. We are seeing approximately 280 patients a day. Together with growing demand this has placed pressure on capacity in the hospital.

The hospital also stressed that A&E is for "serious and life-threatening injuries and conditions only" and advised patients to call 111 in need of medical help quickly.

There were 1,331,873 calls offered to the NHS 111 service in England in February (2018), which stands at 47.6 thousand per day. This number has increased by 15 per cent of the calls offered last year which stood at 41.4 thousand per day.

The proportion of abandoned calls after waiting longer than 30 seconds was 6.6 per cent, which is higher than 2017. Also, 70.4 per cent of NHS 111 calls were answered within 60 seconds, which is fewer than in February last year (89.4 per cent).

A statement released by the hospital continued: "The trust has also promoted uptake of immunisation against flu."

Accidents caused evening of delays for A12 drivers

TWO crashes on the A12 caused traffic problems through Essex on Tuesday night.

Both incidents occurred at around 6pm on Tuesday, March 27.

The southbound carriageway at junction 19 for the Boreham Interchange was partially blocked following the incident up to junction 18 at Danbury.

Following

Traffic travelling on the northbound carriageway also faced delays following an accident at junction 21 at Hatfield Peverel.

There was slow moving traffic on the Bad-dow Bypass, Van Diemans Road and Bad-dow Road, towards the Army & Navy roundabout.

Earlier delays between Marks Farm roundabout and Brain-tree Road were causing problems, with delays on this stretch of the A120 due to temporary traffic lights for electricity works.

Expectant parents are needed Parents-to-be needed for new series

A 'ONE born every minute'-style show is to be filmed in Essex and producers are looking for expectant parents from Harlow to take part.

The show will follow soon-to-be parents throughout their pregnancy journeys at Princess Alexandra Hospital in Harlow.

From first scans and antenatal check-ups, to the early stages of labour and all the way to the delivery room, the show will give viewers an inside look at the maternity ward.

And Firecracker Films has since launched an appeal for soon-to-be parents to feature in their new observational documentary TV show.

So if you're a fan of the hit Channel 4 show 'One born every minute' and would like to feature on the new show based in Essex, Firecracker Films are looking for you.

■ If you would be interested in being filmed or would like to find out more about the series, you can contact the production team on: 07379906019 or email them via: deliveringbabies@firecrackerfilms.com

Emergency landing as aircraft develops fault

By Hannah Kane
hannah.kane@essexlive.news

A FLIGHT travelling from Stansted Airport was forced to make an emergency landing due to a fault with the plane.

Aurigny Air Services flight number GR627 was scheduled to take off at 3.45pm on Tuesday (March 27), from the airport.

However, as it was flying over Hertfordshire, it was forced to return to the airport to land.

Now Stansted Airport and Aurigny airline has confirmed the reason for the landing.

A spokesperson for Stansted Airport said: "An incoming flight which reported a hydraulic issue with flaps landed safely."

The integrity of hydraulic systems are essential to the safety of a flight.

Passengers on the plane had to wait until the next day to get another flight.

An Aurigny spokesperson said: "GR627 returned to Stansted as a precaution following a minor technical issue. The aircraft landed normally and safely without incident. Passengers are being provided with overnight accommodation and will be rebooked onto a flight tomorrow. Alternatively, they can cancel and claim a refund."

Spurs fans are keen to meet former idols

White Hart Lane duo will be at centre

By Tommy Wathen
newsdesk@essexlive.news

TOTTENHAM Hotspur fans will get the chance to meet two former legends at the Harvey Centre in Harlow next month.

With the Premier League season racing to an end, it is an amazing opportunity for local supporters to meet their idols and get autographs during an exclusive meet and greet session.

Reminisce

The players know exactly what playing for Tottenham is all about and will be more than happy to reminisce about the famous White Hart Lane stadium or any historic games in years gone past.

From 12.30pm until 2.30pm on Saturday, April 7, fans will get the chance to meet both Paul Allen and his cousin Clive Allen.

Paul Allen was a Spurs midfielder from 1985 until 1993 and was named the Spurs Player of the

Year in 1991, while Clive Allen scored an incredible 60 goals as a striker for Tottenham between 1984 and 1988.

Bryan Young, manager at The Harvey Centre said: "We're really excited to welcome Paul and Clive Allen to the centre this April.

"Spurs are an iconic club with a huge fan base in Harlow, so we are really lucky to have them at The Harvey Centre's Spurs Store.

"The event is sure to be popular with local football fans of all ages and it's the best opportunity to get up close to these legends and ask them any burning questions."

Tottenham Hotspur is best supported team in Harlow according to a recent Google survey.

The scene after a car hit the central reservation on the M11 motorway

M11 delays after vehicles crash and one hits central reservation

MOTORISTS faced delays on the M11 last week after an accident near Bishop's Stortford.

The crash, reported to have involved two cars, happened on the southbound carriageway between Junction 8, for Stansted Airport, and Junction 7, for Harlow.

All traffic was held until 1.10pm on Wednesday last week (March 21) following the accident, which happened at around 12.05pm.

A black car collided with the central reservation and was facing the wrong way and another was taken away by a recovery vehicle.

Police attended the scene of the accident but left the scene in the early afternoon.

Motorists were warned that there was slow traffic on the M11 as a result of the accident.

'More trains than usual need repairs'

SEVERAL Greater Anglia services were cancelled due to "more trains than usual needing repairs".

The cancelled trains affected daily commuters on Monday morning (March 26).

The train company announced that seven services were cancelled and not stopping at any station on the planned route. Two trains are not available due to "train faults" and two further trains affected with delays and toilet facilities not being available.

The affected routes were: 6:25 London Liverpool Street to Stansted Airport due 7:12, affecting Harlow Town; 7:30 Stansted Airport to London Liverpool Street due 8:23, affecting Bishops Stortford and Harlow Town; the 6:52 Norwich to Great Yarmouth, and in the opposite direction at 7:30.

Commuters were advised they may encounter delays on their journey as many trains will feature less coaches than planned.

For more information on train service updates, visit the Greater Anglia website.

Development project may be in line for £5bn housing fund support

Scheme selected for allocation stage of Government pot

How Gilston Park Estate could look

THE Gilston Park development could receive vital support from the Government after a bid for funding was approved.

The Government announced last Wednesday (March 21) that it would be working alongside 44 areas across England in order to develop projects with the Housing Infrastructure Fund.

Approval

The approved bid by East Herts Council, Harlow Council and Epping Forest Council has made the final stage of the process and means that the Harlow and Gilston Garden Town development is one that could receive support.

The Housing Infrastructure Fund, which was announced in 2017 and doubled to £5 billion following the autumn budget, has the potential to deliver 400,000 homes – including those as part of Gilston Park.

The bid will also help to improve the River Stort crossing, as well as provide a new river crossing into the Gilston area and new transport links to the surrounding villages.

Hertfordshire County Council and Essex County Council will now work together to create a business case in hope of proceeding to the next stage.

A spokeswoman on behalf of East Herts Council, Harlow Council and Epping Forest Council said that the councils are pleased that their Harlow and Gilston Garden Town Housing and Infrastructure Fund (HIF) bid has been approved by the Government to proceed to the next stage.

"The councils have bid for funding to improve the existing River Stort crossing and provide a new river crossing in the Gilston area and also to deliver some of the sustainable transport corridor for the Harlow and Gilston Garden Town Project."

She went on: "The next stage will be for us, along with Hertfordshire County Council and Essex County Council, to develop a detailed business case for this funding.

"This is a competitive process but we hope to be successful in bidding for HIF funding to accelerate infrastructure delivery for the Garden Town Project."

Delight

Harlow MP Robert Halfon added: "It's great news that the Harlow and Gilston Garden Town project has made it to the final round of the Housing Infrastructure Fund process."

"Harlow is a fast-growing town and I will keep pushing hard for much-needed housing and infrastructure funding."

Twitter users demands action on state of county's highways

Images show the growing number of potholes on major roads

By Tom Bage

tom.bage@essexlive.news

LARGE potholes, made worse by the winter weather, on a number of major roads in Essex are causing problems for drivers.

Now, footage showing the extent of the problem at one of the busiest junctions on the county's motorways has surfaced online.

Twitter user: @SMac93964174, or S Mac, filmed a section of road on the M11 from the passenger seat of the vehicle they were in.

The road is littered with large potholes around junction 8 of the M11 heading north, often busy with holiday-makers heading to Stansted.

Problem

And the number of potholes that have become a problem over this year's exceptionally cold winter is "growing", according to drivers.

Sending his video to Highways England and Essex Police, S Mac said: "Please do something about the growing number of potholes on M11 south, junction 9-7, and northbound 7-9."

The Highways England twitter account, to whom S Mac sent the video to on March 16, said it has passed the video onto the team involved.

Highways England has confirmed that it is aware of these potholes, and they are down to be

The number of potholes has grown following the recent spell of bad weather fixed as soon as possible.

It says that on average, each pothole repair costs around £100.

A spokesman for Highways England said: "We have a comprehensive maintenance and renewals programme across all of our major roads and motorways which helps to minimise the risks of potholes occurring."

"When potholes do occur we repair them as soon as possible – any defects that pose a risk to safety are repaired within 24 hours.

"Safety is Highways England's top priority, and we carry out a rolling programme of safety inspections every 28 days to maintain our roads at a high standard while causing minimal disruption for drivers."

How potholes are created

Potholes are created when ground water expands and contracts, weakening the ground under the road surface that eventually breaks down due to the weight of vehicles driving on the road.

The creation of them is particularly prevalent in winter as water under the ground freezes causing it to expand and erode the soil under the road, it then contracts when it thaws, creating weak points and gaps under the road surface.

Vehicles heading over the weakened part of the ground cause the road itself to weaken, causing the surface of the road to be broken down from the weight, creating the pothole.

The more times the water under the road surface freezes and thaws the more damage can be done to the ground under the road.

According to the office of the Summit County Engineer in Ohio, USA the problem is worsened when salt is used to treat icy conditions.

On their website they said:

"When salt is used, it lowers the temperature that water will freeze."

"This creates an artificial freeze-thaw cycle that permits more occurrences of the damaging cycle to occur."

Single mum says work has cost her £80 – but council says ‘facilities will be better’

Where can I park my car during resurfacing?

By Sophie Finnegan
sophie.finnegan@essexlive.news

A SINGLE mum from Harlow says she has been forced to pay £80 to park outside her own flat while the council closed off the parking bays she uses.

Louise Buchannen, of The Stow, claims she can't afford the "expensive" price hike after the council closed off the car park from March 26 until April 6 to carry out work.

Due to the closure, Louise had to look for an alternative car park to use.

But the only one she has managed to find will cost her £80 over the week-and-a-half time period.

She explained: "Me and all the other residents here received a leaflet which said the car park would be closed from March 23 to April 4 and that we need to remove our car.

"I always park my car there. My car's essential for getting to work and going to play groups with my child.

"I've had a look around and I have found somewhere else to park, but I've worked out it's going to cost me around £80.

"Being a single mum, I can't afford that.

"That £80 could be spent on things for my four-month-old child.

"All of us are going to be out of pocket. I think it's a bit unfair that I live there and have to pay out this money.

"I thought maybe the council could have given us a permit or residents only pass to park, but it didn't really offer any alternative.

Louise now hopes the council will adopt resident-only bays to ease the "nightmare" parking situation.

She continued: "The parking around here is already bad enough, when that car park gets full, it gets full.

"I live over the shops and it is a bit of nightmare to park here because people park to use the shops and takeaways.

"The business owners do have their own bays, but when they are full they can park in our bays and then we have nowhere to park.

"Ideally we would like to see residents get our own private bays because, quite often, we can't find anywhere to park."

Some of the neighbours have now banded together with Louise to launch a petition to get the council to enforce resident-only permit parking.

A spokesman for Harlow council said: "There are 18 free parking bays in the area which will be temporarily out of action while urgent resurfacing works take place.

"For safety reasons, all bays will need to be closed while the work is carried out.

"These bays are not assigned or rented to any individual and can be used by anyone working, living or visiting the area.

"The work should take no longer than a week and when completed there will be better parking facilities for local residents.

"Over 200 residential and commercial properties were informed of the work by letter on March 15, as well as signs being placed on the parking area and flyers posted on car windscreens.

"We are sorry for any inconvenience these temporary works will cause."

Here's our guide to the most thrilling Are you on the hunt for some Easter egg fun over the holidays?

By Clare Youell
clare.youell@essexlive.news

NOTHING says Easter like a good old Easter egg hunt.

Children love this activity, no matter how old they are.

Whether you collect eggs in a basket or have to search for clues, it's a great family activity to keep your little ones amused over the holidays.

Here are some of the best Easter egg hunts in this part of Essex and slightly further afield this year:

■ Easter Festival at Old MacDonald's Farm Old MacDonald's Farm, Weald Road, Brentwood

What: Your little ones can enjoy a day at the farm, which starts with an Easter egg hunt. There's also a rabbit character to meet and greet, a rabbit-themed maze, special guests, face painting and the chance to see baby bunnies, chicks and ducks.

When: Friday, March 30 – Sunday, April 15.

Cost: Online price £14, children £13, under-twos free.

■ Easter Special at Audley End Railway Audley End Road, Audley End, Saffron Walden, CB11 4JB

What: When you arrive at the railway, you and your family catch the little train into the woods to visit the Easter Bunny and friends. You have to keep an eye out for special signs as you go. If you can spot them all, the children will be given an exclusive Easter gift. Then you can hop into the craft area to do some arts and crafts.

When: Friday, March 30 – Sunday, April 1, 2018. 10am-5pm

Cost: £11 per person, under-twos free

■ Easter Egg Hunt at Hanningfield Reservoir Visitor Centre, Hawkswood Road, Downham, Billericay

What: Lots of chocolatey treats have been left all over the reservoir and it's your job to find them all. Once you've completed the trail, don't go home as you can create some Easter crafts and take part in a fun pond-dipping session.

When: Friday, March 30 and Sunday, April 1, 10am-4pm.

Cost: £8 per child.

■ Step into Spring at Barleylands Farm Park, Barleylands Road, Billericay

What: Barleylands staff have arranged an egg-packed day out over Easter. There's a self-guided egg hunt and all the children will get the chance to meet the Easter Bunny. You can also feed the lambs and meet all the other cute baby animals.

When: Friday, March 30 – Sunday, April 15, 10am-5pm.

Cost: Adults £12, children £11, under-twos free, family £42.

■ Easter Egg Hunt at Epping Ongar Railway Station Approach, Chipping Ongar, CM5 9BN

What: This is a good one because it's "probably the longest Easter Egg hunt" in the county. Join Bertie the Bunny, who will lead the trail which runs along the whole length of the railway track, from Ongar to Coopersdale.

The route is so long, if you placed eggs from one end to another without a gap, it would take 131,579 to fill the space.

Every child will be given a clue sheet and they have to find as many numbered eggs as they can while on the train to win their Easter treat. You can also meet Bertie, as well as enjoying face painting, magic and balloon modelling.

When: Friday, March 30 – Monday, April 2

Cost: In advance – Adults £15, children £7.

On the day – Adults £16, children £8.

■ Easter Bunny Trail at Danbury Country Park, Woodhill Road, Danbury

What: On arrival at the park, you follow the Easter trail and then get to paint your own egg. The Easter Bunny will be waiting to take a selfie with your kids and, of course, hand out a chocolate treat. The Easter Bunny also has some furry friends with him for you to pet.

When: Friday, March 30, 10am – 3.30pm

Cost: £6 per child

■ Giant Easter Egg Hunt at Marsh Farm Marsh Farm, Marsh Farm Road, South Woodham Ferrers

What: The Marsh Farm egg hunt is one of the biggest in the county. The cheeky Easter Bunny has hidden thousands of eggs over a four-acre site at the farm and you have to help the Mad Hatter collect them. You'll even get a basket to fill up. While you're at the farm, pop by and see the spring lambs, piglets and other animals.

When: Friday, March 30 – Monday, April 2.

Cost: Adults and children £13.50, under-twos free.

■ Lindt Gold Bunny Hunt at Rhs Garden Hyde Hall, Creepedge Lane, Rettendon

What: Who doesn't love a Lindt Easter bunny? When you arrive at the pretty gardens, you go on the trail to find and solve the clues which are dotted around the site. When you've completed as much as you can, your children will each be rewarded with a Lindt bunny treat.

When: Friday, March 30 – April 15, 10am-6pm.

Cost: Adults £12.65, children £6.33, families £31.90.

■ Charity Easter Bunny Hunt at Hylands Park, Chelmsford.

What: This large-scale Easter egg hunt has been happening in the city for 15 years.

It's organised by the Chelmsford Ladies Circle and this year the popular Easter Bunny hunt is back at its original location of Hylands Park.

The kids have to search for all of the wooden bunnies which are hidden around the park and they'll get a chocolate treat at the end. This event is in aid of charity.

When: Sunday, April 1, 11am-1pm (prize collection ends at 2pm).

Cost: £3.50 per child in advance, or a few tickets on the day will be available at £4.50. You can pre-book your slot now.

Sad demise of venue has hit creativity

I WAS very upset to see that the Square was finally demolished and was nowhere to be seen on 1st March. Peering at the barren land, where an iconic venue once stood, made it final. I think we didn't really think it was going to ever happen, but it has, just so that greedy plutocrats can build unaffordable housing, where our independent music and creative arts venue once stood.

We tried to protest against its removal which helped so many creative people in this town, but it fell on deaf ears, that's not a pun for standing next to a speaker for years by the way, I've got better jokes. As we know, many famous people used the Square to test out material, Phill Jupitus and Eddie Izzard did, as well as Omid Djalili and many fantastic bands, started off there. Where are the creative children going to be nurtured now? Where are us square pegs going to hang out and dance, sing, act, write and discuss how morally wrong the world is and how the rich want to tear down our sacred, independent venues.

I spoke about this on Planet Rock; we signed petitions, we asked politicians, but still, it was us and them. We are now left without anywhere to call home, where we can feel accepted. Harlow's nightlife is diabolical now. I remember when I was out every night in different venues in town and walked everywhere alone at night, without fear. Where are the up and coming talent and children of the revolution of this town, going to hang out and be free?

Anyone who wants to pay their last respects and say goodbye to The Square, is invited to The Square wake. It has been set up by Elizabeth Smith and is on Saturday 10th March. It is open to absolutely anyone who loved The Square. They are going to lay flowers - I know, very dramatic, but most of us have studied the arts, so what do you expect. Meet at the graveyard of the Square at 6.30pm and then go to Weatherspoons for a drink after. Everybody is invited. Like I said a year ago. Viva la Square- you can kill a venue, but you can't kill an idea.

Think about what war is doing

CHILDREN in Yemen are dying from an epidemic of cholera caused by a war that Britain's Conservative government is fuelling, with the support of MPs such as Harlow's Robert Halfon.

The Kingdom of Saudi Arabia and its allies have been intervening militarily in the civil war in Yemen for the past three years, and their war effort is receiving diplomatic and military support from the United Kingdom.

British-trained Saudi air force pilots flying British-made warplanes are dropping British-made bombs on schools, hospitals, and homes in Yemen, while British military officials advise the armed forces of Saudi Arabia on how to conduct their intervention in that country.

The United Nations reported last September that air raids by the Saudi-led coalition continued to be the leading cause of the 13,893 civilian casualties documented, killing 3,233 people.

A Saudi-led blockade has caused a shortage of food and fuel. Seven cities shut down their water systems for lack of fuel in January. About 75 per cent of the population - 22.2 million people - are in need of humanitarian assistance. Severe acute malnutrition is threatening the lives of almost 400,000 children under the age of five.

The United Kingdom has supplied over £4.6 billion worth of weapons to Saudi Arabia since this war began, and now the government of Theresa May has approved the sale of another 48 Typhoon warplanes to Saudi Arabia.

The deliberate starvation of civilian populations and indiscriminate bombing are war crimes. It is shameful that the British government enables these crimes, and that the Member of Parliament for Harlow defends the perpetrators.

I hope that Mr Halfon will re-think his position and decide to denounce Saudi war crimes, call for the immediate cessation of arms exports to Saudi Arabia, and work for a negotiated settlement to the pointless war in Yemen.

Support teachers by training young

I HAVE lived in Harlow for the past six years, and from my observation, the town centre is full of unruly, indiscipline and disrespectful children, teens and young adults. It reveals the kind of training those children receive from their homes.

I read with disappointment (Harlow Star, March 15) that a father was upset that some children had been 'punished' by the school for their misbehaviour. If wearing a bib to tidy up where other children ate in your school compound (not in the town centre) as punishment for your misbehaviour is seen as 'demeaning, embarrassing, degrading, humiliating and looks like singling them out as criminals' then, what about those who clean the school in general?

I am of the opinion that some children are taught to wash the plates of their siblings at home. Should that be considered embarrassing, degrading and humiliating?

If all what teachers are supposed to do is to teach (English, Maths, Science, etc) without discipline to correct children's misbehaviour, then, we are going to raise a generation of academic idiots - people with 'book knowledge' but lack moral discipline and good character.

Parents have the divine responsibility to train their children well, so that when they grow they would not depart from it. It is NOT in the best interest of any child to continue to misbehave without proper discipline.

Teachers have every right to punish unruly behaviour in class. If my child misbehaves in school, I tell the teacher to give him the necessary punishment; and when he comes home, I give him 'my version' of discipline, if it is confirmed that he misbehaved at school.

It is very easy to criticise the teacher. If the class is very noisy, they say the teacher don't have control over the class. If the teacher punishes children, they call it 'embarrassing, degrading and humiliating'.

Teachers already have enough on their hands; let us support them by training our children well at home. It doesn't profit anyone for a father to angrily visit a school because his child had been disciplined for misbehaving. It is better to train a child than to 'repair' an adult.

TALKING POINT

Politics must become more personal if it is to engage interest of young

THE BIG QUESTION:

Should more be done to encourage our local young people in to politics?

LABOUR

Laura McAlpine

OUR democracy gives people the right to vote, but what good is it if the education system is failing our children by not delivering education about politics when they are at secondary school? Why vote, if you do not know what you are voting for? And why get into politics?

It is vital that young people are taught the history of political parties and the struggles that young working class people faced, young people, just like them.

The famous Matchgirls strike of 1888, was caused by poor working conditions, 14 hour days and severe health complications, which effected children as well as adults. They fought for better conditions and they won their fight. The Labour Party was formed because of many years of struggle by working class people.

But how is that relevant to young people today and will it encourage them to get into politics? For young people to be engaged, politics must become personal, and recently it has. During the 2017 General election, more young people went out to vote than they have done in recent history. Policies including the abolition of tuition fees and secure homes, resonated. There was hope. The Corbyn effect spread like wild fire and suddenly striving for justice and fairness became popular.

Locally, young people are becoming increasingly engaged. We have 3 Harlow Young Labour members standing in local elections, and there has been a surge in Harlow Labour youth engagement and community activism. Refurbishing a basketball court in Sumners and raising £400 for a local homeless charity, 'Streets2Homes' are just a couple of Harlow Young Labour's recent achievements. Since its clear that our current national curriculum is failing to provide any real political education, we must ensure that our policies are relevant and personal to young people. That way, we will encourage more activity and political engagement. The future of the country lies in the hands of the youth and I for one think that is a pretty exciting prospect.

WHAT QUESTIONS DO YOU WANT ANSWERED?

■ Every week, we'll be putting your questions to representatives of each of your main local parties. So get involved! Email your questions to get the issues that matter to you on the agenda.

GREEN PARTY

Hannah Clare

MY start in politics came when I was elected to a position on the Young Essex Assembly in October 2006. I am still incredibly proud of the four years I spent campaigning and the achievements I made both on a national level as a member of UK Youth Parliament and on a local level by working closely with Harlow Youth Council. But beyond this – the training and support I received through these organisations undoubtedly gave me the skills I needed to be where I am today.

Cuts to youth services and local government have unfortunately meant these organisations and organisations like them are not as well funded as they were when I first got involved. Recent research by UK Youth suggests that there has been a 52% reduction in gross expenditure in young people since 2014/15 across East Anglia, one of the highest in the UK. With such a struggle to fund their services, we will see less of these organisations that enable young people to get involved. I'm proud that the Green Party believes in a statutory funded youth service available for all young people.

Even so – when involving young people in politics they should be able to enact meaningful change. As a young person involved in politics, I am often belittled and treated like a token, rather than having a true voice.

The same can be said of many youth councils, which unfortunately become a vehicle for councils to pretend they are engaging with young people.

More absolutely needs to be done to encourage young people into politics. It starts locally, with prioritising young people in the budget to ensure young people can campaign and make change in their community. Nationally, young people should be given the right to vote and be given political education as part of their curriculum. The government also needs to question the effect of their cuts to local councils, meaning that local services are suffering (and not just those for young people).

Students were required to use their skill, ingenuity and creative thinking to design a solution

Talented students' glimpse into the world of engineers and scientists

TWELVE of Passmores' best science, technology and maths students represented the school in the annual Faraday National Competition, organised by the Institute of Engineering and Technology.

Students aged between 12 and 13 competed in teams to design and promote the best solution to a real-life engineering problem. As always, the challenge had been kept under wraps until the event started, and this year's focus was revealed to be an examination of the problems facing Thorpe Park. Students were required to use their skill, ingenuity and creative thinking to design a solution, whilst taking into account the range of identified criteria outlined in the design brief. These included how their product met the needs of different stakeholders. The development of the product tested each group's ability to organise themselves and work collaboratively, monitoring their expenditure and challenging their knowledge of construction and electronics.

In an exceptionally close run competition and a nail biting finish, Passmores narrowly missed out on first place, being beaten at the last minute by a single point. All the students who took part demonstrated high ability in maintaining focus, creativity and drive and were awarded with a certificate to commemorate their achievements.

Clive Benham, Head of ICT at Passmores said: "The Faraday competition offers students an exciting glimpse in to the world of engineers, scientists and mathematicians and an opportunity to develop solutions to real world problems faced by well-known companies. I was delighted by the way our students responded to the technological challenge and their ability to work co-operatively with each other to achieve their goal."

Faraday Challenge Day trophy won by St Mark's school bright sparks

The winning team: Frederyk Lukasik, Jerodine Boamah, Shalom Chizango, Ellisa Appleton, Aaron Hynd, and PJ Fausto

PUPILS from St Mark's West Essex Catholic School, who competed in a local schools' challenge against Stewards and Passmores, were thrilled to win the Faraday Challenge Day, scooping a prize for themselves and a trophy for the school.

It was organised, and run, by the Institute of Engineering and Technology as part of its commitment to show young people the benefits of careers within Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics (STEM).

The Challenge Day gives pupils the opportunity to research, design and make prototype solutions to genuinely tough engineering problems, in addition to enabling them to experience working as an engineer for a day. All the pupils involved worked enthusiastically throughout the day and were a credit to their individual schools.

St Mark's science teacher, and coordinator of the challenge, Godfrey Osei said: "We were very pleased to win the competition."

"Our school is passionate about giving our students new and exciting opportunities to engage in STEM subjects.

"A strong UK economy relies on great engineering output, and it is crucial to get the engineers of the future interested at an early age."

The St Mark's team now progress to the national final to compete for a cash prize of up to £1,000 for the school.

150 students audition for School of Rock musical

A SCHOOL production is promising to be the biggest and best yet.

Excited students at Burnt Mill Academy, in Harlow, were keen to audition for the School of Rock having seen the West End musical recently.

In fact, many requested to audition on the coach on the way home. Interest was so high, a second audition day had to be put on and a total of 150 students tried out for parts.

Cristin Casey, director of performing arts at the Burnt

Mill Academy Trust, said: "Having taken students to see the show in London, there was a huge buzz around auditioning for our school production."

"Every student in the school was given the opportunity to audition for a part. The show will feature lots of acting, music and our school bands.

"We believe we are the School of Rock with our very own rock venue on site here with Club Foot. It is almost written for our facilities and so many of our students are in bands already.

"We are celebrating the legacy of rock music-making that has gone on through the years at Burnt Mill."

Dad steps out on his first marathon for local charity

HARLOW runner, Jody Randall has pledged to support local charity 'No Child Without' when he competes in the Southampton Marathon this spring.

After applying unsuccessfully for a place in the London Marathon, Jody was undeterred and determined to find a way to raise money for the Harlow charity. He has managed to secure a place in the Southampton Marathon which takes place on Sunday April 22. Jody will donate all money raised to No Child Without, which is run by Passmores Academy and raises funds which enable children from across the whole town and beyond to access educational opportunities they would otherwise miss out on.

Although Jody has completed half marathons in the past, tackling the full distance of 26.2 miles is a new challenge for him. The preparations involve an intensive 20-week training programme which is designed to become more demanding as the weeks progress.

With strong links to Passmores, the charity is close to father of three Jody's heart. He said: "All of my children are at, or have been through Passmores. I was a student there and my wife also works at the school. As a family we are lucky and have been able to provide for our children, but others are less fortunate. No Child Without can make experiences that would not necessarily be available to children in the Harlow area become a reality'.

Jody is aiming to raise at least £500. If you would like to make a donation, this can be done via Jody's Just Giving link: www.justgiving.com/fundraising/jody-randall1. Additionally, donations can be made by text message to 70070, entering SOUM74. The amount of the donation will be added your mobile phone bill.

Aspiring teachers invited to academy open events

A UNIQUE opportunity is being offered to those keen to pursue a career in teaching.

The Burnt Mill Academy Trust (BMAT) Teaching School is holding a series of open events to promote the opportunities available to train to teach within its primary and secondary schools.

With schools in Harlow, Epping and Stansted and Newham in London, the Trust can give trainee teachers access to a wide variety of training and teaching experiences.

Interested candidates are invited to attend open mornings and evenings to discover more about the Trust and the training pathways available in all subjects.

They will also get to watch outstanding teachers in action in a live classroom setting – with a recent group watching BMAT CEO Helena Mills CBE teach.

The Trust has 42 trainee places available for Reception up to Key Stage 5.

Donna Walsh, director of Teaching School, said: "We are offering a range of routes into teaching, which can all be completed inhouse with our Trust schools.

"We are looking for enthusiastic, hardworking, positive, creative people keen to join the teaching profession. They could be university students or those looking for a career change. It would be ideal if they have had experience within a school setting already.

"We are a growing multi academy trust able to offer a variety of placements and our trainees get to work together inhouse on our training programme.

"Our Teaching School offers training for recently qualified teachers, aspiring middle leaders, aspiring senior leaders and aspiring headteachers. As Burnt Mill Academy is an outstanding school, we are a designated Teaching School with teaching at the heart of what we do. From the CEO to the newest trainee, everyone teaches our children. That's how it should be."

The Trust is offering the Postgraduate Certificate in Education (PGCE) and Qualified Teacher Status (QTS).

Unearthing the story of our town's Roman past

ACROSS Essex we are known for echoes of the Roman past and Harlow is no exception.

The temple has always been a part of the local landscape, with local tribes establishing a basic shrine to pagan gods until the Romans invaded Britain in AD43.

The Romans took over the site and improved it over a 400-year occupation into a temple to Minerva and a common stopping point for travellers in and around Essex. In the later Roman period it was abandoned due to the adoption of Christianity and became a note of interest for cartographers and the later Ordnance Survey maps.

Post New Town Harlow, excavations were carried out on the site but the one most commonly related to in the public eye is the 1980s excavations headed up by Richard Bartlett who worked at Harlow Museum in its original home of Passmores House.

Over the course of the Bartlett excavations, some as many as 6,000 artefacts were discovered in and around the site of the temple including such objects as pottery, tesserae and similar ceramic household objects;

Early archaeological work on the Roman and Celtic temple site in Harlow. The foundations in the foreground probably supported a water-pipe and rune diagonally across an earlier gully. Behind the archaeologists is a part of the outer wall of the Roman temple with the remains of a buttress bone material including dogs, deer and cows; a significant number of Roman, Iron Age and later era coins; as well as temple-specific objects like the limestone bust.

Minerva was the goddess of many things but most commonly wisdom and the arts but also found connections to warfare and strategy in later adoptions.

When the Romans arrived it was a small, non-enclosed shrine but over time they added walls, offering rooms, an enclosed space of worship, as well as a gate. Its progression over the years can be seen at Harlow Museum.

On a more sombre note, Richard Bartlett died suddenly before he was able to fully publish his work and the site for the temple is a somewhat overgrown green verge within the industrial estate named after its existence. That being said, we should take a moment to recognise the importance of this site as it was a part of those early civilisations that cemented Harlow as a place.

Youngsters head to the farm for an afternoon of Easter fun

HERTS and Essex Community Farm will be hosting its annual Easter event at the Fold Croft site this Saturday.

Children will be able to join in with a traditional Easter Egg hunt – and every child goes away with an egg.

There will be lots of fun and games on offer for children, with seasonal arts and crafts and traditional games including a lucky dip.

In the farm kitchen hot drinks, homemade cakes and warming soup will be served all for donations, and there will also be a sausage sizzle supplied by local business, Churchgate Sausage Shop, with vegetarian sausages available too.

Event organiser Kelly Brace-Day said: “Our event last year was a huge success with over 150 children attending and we look forward to welcoming our guests for another afternoon of Easter fun at the farm.”

There will be signs

From last year's Easter event directing guests to the tucked away site from Hobtoe Road and limited car parking spaces available at the neighbouring judo club, though guests are encouraged to arrive on foot, the site being a 15-minute walk from Harlow town centre.

Herts & Essex Community Farm has wheelchair access and accessible toilet facilities.

The site is open air so guests are reminded to wear appropriate clothing and footwear for the weather, as the site can get every muddy.

The event runs from noon until 2pm and entrance is £2 per child, with free entry for all adults and any children not participating in the hunt.

Hidden heart box is the key to finding out about Inner Wheel

THE Inner Wheel club of Harlow is a group of like-minded women who are actively working together to help local, national and international charities.

Originally intended for the wives of Rotarians, Inner Wheel became so successful that membership is now independent and open to anybody who wants to find new friends and make a difference to the lives of people in the community or worldwide.

The Harlow Club is part of District 24 which covers most of Essex and is just one of the districts in the UK.

Each year the clubs in District 24 are set a challenge to win the Daphne Cole Trophy, a coveted prize among club members. This year members were tasked with creating small heart shaped gifts that represent Inner Wheel as being at the heart of the community.

Harlow Inner Wheel Club won, and club president Yvonne Bell received the Daphne Cole Trophy from Celia Clark, district chairman, at the district meeting. The heart was crafted by Anne Crawford, club correspondent, and has been placed somewhere in Harlow Town for a lucky person to find and keep. Inside is information about Inner Wheel.

The club has plans for the future and is calling on women to join them.

Youth councillors dig deep to plant 450 trees to give pond area a boost

HARLOW youth councillors got digging to plant an impressive 450 trees as part of ongoing improvements at Oakwood Pond.

Restoration of the historic parkland and pond (at the back of Upper Park) began last year with volunteers and council staff working together to complete a number of improvements.

The trees, which were planted on Saturday, March 10, have been put closely together to create a hedgerow around the site.

Harlow's young people were asked to get involved to improve the environment for future generations.

Meet the Gruffalo out of the deep, dark wood

THE Harvey Centre in Harlow is excited to announce it will be welcoming children's picture book favourite The Gruffalo this weekend.

The loveable character will be making appearances at intervals between 11am and 4pm on Saturday (March 31) and is the perfect opportunity for children and families to see this classic literary character brought to life.

Children will also be able to let their imagination run wild as they make wooden spoon puppets in the centre's craft workshops - organised especially for the event.

Expanding on the literary theme, a storyteller will be adding another dimension to the experience and reading a variety of popular children's books.

All events are free and offers families the perfect antidote to bored children at the start of the Easter holiday break, with no impact on the purse strings.

By making a move away from traditional Easter themed activities, the Harvey Centre hopes to offer Harlow families a unique event that every generation can enjoy.

The Gruffalo is a children's picture book written by Julia Donaldson and illustrated by Axel Scheffler. It tells the story of Mouse's encounter with The Gruffalo while taking a walk through the deep, dark woods.

The book has sold over 13 million copies and has won several prizes for children's literature, and has been developed into plays on both the West End and Broadway.

Bryan Young, centre manager at The Harvey Centre said: "We're really excited to be welcoming The Gruffalo to The Harvey Centre this Easter.

"This character is a childhood favourite so we are expecting a very busy Easter weekend.

"We made a deliberate decision to deliver something a little different this Easter we hope everyone enjoys the experience."

SINCE his critically acclaimed debut feature Bottle Rocket, writer-director Wes Anderson has skipped merrily down the path less travelled with offbeat ensemble comedies including the Oscar-winning magnum ludicrous, The Grand Budapest.

In 2009, he dipped his big toe into stop-motion animation with a quirky adaptation of Roald Dahl's Fantastic Mr Fox. The auteur returns to the painstaking art form for this self-consciously offbeat buddy comedy on two and four legs.

Anderson employs an episodic structure with pithy chapter headings like The Little Pilot, The Rendezvous and Atari's Lantern to neatly bookmark his visually stunning odyssey.

The detail of miniature sets and character figures is remarkable and there are some lovely touches like multiple uses for cotton wool and lice slaloming through dogs' matted fur in skin-crawling close-up.

Yoko Ono enjoys a throwaway cameo as a plucky research scientist called... Yoko Ono.

The film is arch, knowing and impeccably conceived but emotionally a tad chilly, revelling in the inventiveness and imagination of the writer-director's unique vision at the expense of collaring our emotions for a satisfying walk.

Set on the Japanese Archipelago 20 years into the future, the film's chief villain is self-serving politician Mayor Kobayashi (voiced by Kunichi Nomura), who is responsible for the well-being of the gullible citizens of Megasaki.

EXILE

As an ardent cat lover, Kobayashi decrees that the only way to eradicate an outbreak of virulent snout fever is to exile canines to a remote island, where Megasaki dumps its residential waste.

Voters comply and the Mayor's 12-year-old ward Atari (Koyu Rankin) is forced to bid farewell to his shaggy companion, Spots.

The resourceful tyke defies the Mayor and menacing henchman Major Domo (Akira Takayama) to steal a plane and fly to the island to be reunited with his pet.

Atari crash-lands and befriends a disparate pack of mangy mutts including Chief (Bryan Cranston), King (Bob Balaban), Boss (Bill Murray), Rex (Edward Norton) and Duke (Jeff Goldblum).

They embark on a daredevil mission to overturn the Mayor's edict.

"That kid is going to get us all put to sleep," forlornly growls one dog.

Thankfully, Atari has allies in a visiting American girl (Greta Gerwig) and a seductive show dog named Nutmeg (Scarlett Johansson).

Isle Of Dogs lollops along at a brisk pace, laced with flashes of Anderson's droll humour.

The vocal cast chews on these verbal bones with relish, particularly Goldblum as a dog with a penchant for listening to wicked whispers.

Visually, this is leaps and bounds ahead of Fantastic Mr Fox but retains the same roughly hewn charm, albeit with a distinctive eastern aesthetic.

Virtual pleasures

READER PLAYER ONE

(12A) ★★★★★

Set in the mid-21st century, Ready Player One is a dystopian big budget fantasy, which imagines a resource-depleted world that relies on virtual reality as an escape from the gloom of the everyday.

On more than one occasion, Steven Spielberg's film issues dire warning about the zombification of entire generations, who believe "meaningful" relationships can be forged online.

"Reality is the only thing that's real," proclaims one pivotal character.

It's a bitter irony that Spielberg's picture gleefully ignores its own advice to hurtle at breakneck speed into eye-popping digital realms crammed with gaming in-jokes, but offers us no compelling reason to remove the goggles and interface in person.

As a visual spectacle, the film is a tour-de-force of technical wizardry.

Action sequences are orchestrated with pulse-quickening aplomb including a destruction derby that incorporates a rampaging Tyrannosaurus Rex and King Kong, and a breathtaking return to The Overlook Hotel as imagined in Stanley Kubrick's 1980 horror film The Shining.

In the giant Imax format, Spielberg's mastery of set pieces is jaw-dropping.

Unfortunately, the fast and furious smacking of gobs doesn't extend to a script adapted from Ernest Cline's celebrated 2011 novel by the author and Zak Penn.

In 2045, mankind unites in a virtual space called the Oasis.

In this fantastical realm, accessed via headsets and gloves, everyone can indulge their whims such as climbing Mount Everest in the company of Batman.

Wade Watts (Tye Sheridan) is a teenager living in a rundown trailer park with his uncaring aunt Alice (Susan Lynch) and her brutish fella (Ralph Ineson).

The teenager sneaks off to his scrapyard hideaway where he journeys through the Oasis in the guise of his avatar Parzival and trades banter with fellow players Art3mis (Olivia Cooke), Aech (Lena Waithe), Daito (Win Morisaki) and Sho (Philip Zhao).

They are hunting three fabled keys, which James Halliday (Mark Rylance), co-creator of the Oasis, concealed before his death.

The first person to solve the fiendish puzzles that protect these keys will be granted ownership of the game.

The quest to solve Halliday's riddles pits Wade and co against Nolan Sorrento (Ben Mendelsohn), Machiavellian chief executive of Innovative Online Industries, who intends to seize control of the Oasis by fair means or – preferably – foul.

Ready Player One begs and pleads for repeat viewings to spot myriad pop culture references including Knight Rider, A Nightmare On Elm Street and a killer joke with the Chucky doll from Child's Play.

Sheridan and Cooke are an appealing pairing but they don't share enough real world screen time to turn up the heat on their characters' romance.

"She's hacking your heart to get to your head," Wade is warned.

Spielberg's film attempts to go the same route with us via a dizzying blitzkrieg of 1980s and 1990s nostalgia, but ultimately falls short.

Reggae survivors

Robin Campbell of UB40 tells MARTIN NEAL about the secret of the band's enduring success and the feud with his brother Ali

“I should be in the studio now,” says Robin Campbell, guitarist and vocalist with reggae legends UB40, “but I thought I’d do some interviews instead.”

For a band that made its name back in the 80s, there’s no shortage of things to keep them busy – their first album for five years, a 40th anniversary gig at the Royal Albert Hall, a bunch of outdoor summer dates including one at Garon Park, Southend, and an acrimonious feud with former members which, if they get their way, will be settled once and for all in court.

“That’s what we do,” says Robin as we discuss UB40’s busy touring schedule. “We’re a touring band and have been for a decade now. It’s what we love doing.”

“We’ve got a new album coming out. We’re finishing it off so hopefully at the end of May.”

“We’re doing it through Pledge Music, so you can have a look on pledge.com to see what it’s all about. That seems to be the way to go these days.”

The last offering, 2013’s Getting Over The Storm was, rather surprisingly, a collection of reggae-up versions of country songs.

“Our manager used to be Robert Palmer’s manager,” explained Robin, “and it was his idea. In the 90s we had a hit with Robert (a cover of Bob Dylan’s I’ll Be Your Baby Tonight) and we recorded a few other songs at the same time which weren’t released.

“We found the recordings in the archives and decided to pick it up again – the idea was to include it on a greatest hits of Robert Palmer album because obviously he passed away a few years ago, but for some reason his family wouldn’t allow us to use Robert’s performance. I’ve no idea why but I think there was politics involved.”

“But we liked the tune so we revoiced it and it went from there.”

“There’s a big link between reggae and country. In Jamaica when they were first able to pick up American radio stations, it was the southern stations they could here and of course they played country music.”

“The best selling artist of all-time in Jamaica is, not surprisingly, Elvis Presley, but the second biggest selling artist of all-time is Jim Reeves. Not a lot of people know that!”

“But this album is hardcore. It’s back to early UB40. It’s back to what we were doing in the early 80s, before the Labour of Love series.”

Whichever direction UB40 choose, it’s a fair bet you’ll have little trouble knowing it’s their work when you hear it.

Red Red Wine is one of the most memorable tunes of the 80s and the band has been responsible for a conveyor belt of hits from the moment the politically-aware debut album Signing Off flew off the shelves in 1980 and has included Many Rivers To Cross, Rat in mi Kitchen and Kingston Town to name a few.

“As a band you want a unique sound that is instantly recognisable,” continues Robin, “and if by a stroke of luck it proves to be popular, you can go on for years.”

Not all of the young Brummies who started out all those years ago and famously named themselves after the government’s signing on document have made it this far though.

Original singer Ali Campbell (Robin’s brother), Mickey Virtue and Astro all left at various points and now perform together under the banner of UB40 Featuring Ali Astro and Mickey. And it’s all got very messy.

“It’s galling that they’re stealing our name,” says Robin. “They’ve spent a lot of money keeping us out of court but we’re still trying to get them in court.”

“They say the name they’re using is different but it bloody isn’t! There are so many legal precedents that they haven’t got a leg to stand on.”

“We didn’t break up and reform, we’ve been continuous. We fully intend to get them in court to stop them using our name.”

“The fans are voting with their feet. When they played the Royal Albert Hall it was two thirds full but our date there sold out weeks ago. But it’s internationally that the damage is being done.”

Every cloud and all that though – and Duncan Campbell, who replaced his brother on lead vocals in 2008 – has breathed fresh life into the band.

“There’s no slavish imitation of Ali but Duncan’s voice is similar enough to keep the same sound,” says Robin.

“Duncan was like a rabbit caught in headlights to start with because it was all new to him but he’s grown into it.”

“We are better than we have been for a long time now – he has re-energised us. He’s given us our mojo back.”

“In the 90s we were getting tired and for the last couple of years that Ali was in the band it was strained. We knew he was going to go. Then Duncan came in and things changed.”

GREAT SCOT

The snow-dusted landscape of the Ardgour Estate, Scotland

MARC WADDINGTON finds unspoiled beauty in the wilds of Scotland

NOTHING makes it more apparent just how big a country Scotland is than driving through its many vast, virtually untouched spaces. Watching the patches of cloud shadow slide along the rugged heather-clad landscape of Glen Coe, you struggle to comprehend how scenery so huge can account for such a small section of the road map.

Our destination is some way further north of this wilderness – the Ardgour peninsula – the final leg of it requiring a trip on the Corran ferry. Today, the ferry is a large, motorised car transporter that criss-crosses the waterway from morning to night. But behind this peaceful passage is a macabre tale.

The Maclean clan put its roots down on the peninsula in the 1400s. So the tale goes, ambitious young Donald asked the de facto king of western Scotland, MacDonald, Lord of the Isles, for his own lands. He took his master's response to suggest he should claim for himself the lands of Ardgour, which was in the hands of the weak McMaster clan.

Enjoy cosy accommodation

When the invaders arrived, the McMaster chief managed to escape the slaughter and ran to the water-side. The ferryman, sensing which way the bloodied tide was turning, refused him passage and he too was butchered.

When the ferry man tried to curry favour with the newcomers by explaining he'd refused the old clan chief passage, he is said to have been told by Donald that 'any man who is not loyal to his chief is not worthy of life', and been duly hanged from his own oars.

Life on Ardgour today is thankfully a much more serene affair, the ferry men more obliging (and thus on good terms with the landowners), and a lure to visitors from all across the globe. The estate is still run by the Macleans of Ardgour, with Ewen and

The award-winning 'wee tower'

Annie having renovated a number of small cottages dotted around the landscape into beautiful holiday lets.

You arrive weary from a long journey to a warm welcome, the firewood ready-chopped and waiting to be loaded into the stove. You go to sleep at night under a blanket of black sky studded with brightly burning stars – which can be viewed from the incredible and cosy 'wee tower' (which won Eco-shed of the year on Channel 4's Amazing Spaces programme) – and wake up in the morning to bright blue canopy of sky stretched tight from the poles of giant pines.

The wild, untamed landscape of the peninsula is brimming with wildlife. There is an abundance of roe deer and red deer, but other creatures who are not so many in number are also a major attraction. It is astonishing to think that there may be as few as 35 pure breed Scottish wildcats remaining in the wild, but the estate is a keen supporter of the Wildcat Haven project and there are camera traps set up all around the terrain which give people a chance to see these remarkable creatures in their own habitat.

western Scotland is a major draw for fishermen, but the hopeful amateur can hire equipment and spend the day listening to the tranquil sound of the babbling waters of the river Gour, which is packed with brown trout.

The peninsula offers a fantastic view of Ben Nevis, but there are incredible walks to be had that don't require quite that much stamina.

There are three 'corbetts' to take on. While they are slightly smaller than their larger cousins – munros – they must still measure up to 3,000 feet high and have a drop of at least 500 feet on all sides, so anyone thinking of taking them on needs to be in good shape.

If it's a more sedentary holiday you have in mind, then a drive out further west takes you to one of the most stunning picnic spots you'll find, in the shadow of the ruins of Castle Tioram.

Now a scheduled ancient monument, the castle stands on the tidal island of Eilean Tioram (pronounced cheerum), and towers over magnificent sandy white beaches. Towards the end of the summer and right up to September, the warmer currents of the Atlantic make the waters around it pleasantly – if bracingly – swimmable.

Despite our trip falling somewhat earlier in the year, I accepted the challenge to take a dip in the relatively shallow waters lapping the beach. While it was cold enough just on the feet and ankles, taking the plunge and splashing down into the water was a whole other thing.

I didn't think water could be so cold and not be in solid form, and I suspect the sound I made – one I had never made before and never have since, clearly reserved exclusively for such an experience – could be heard all the way back on the Ardgour Estate.

Despite the stunning natural beauty of this place, you can spend much of the day here and see next to no-one. That said, there is an outside chance you could see a few famous faces. Across from the castle is the island of Eilean Shona, which is owned by Vanessa Branson, sister of Virgin tycoon Richard.

Among the visitors of this island paradise are of course the bearded billionaire, as well as actress Kate Winslet, comedian Jack Whitehall and Princess Eugenie.

And you can understand why. This part of the world is one of the most beautiful landscapes you will find anywhere.

A holiday here is a relatively inexpensive affair, but on the dusky drive back to the estate with the sun setting behind us in the west, I couldn't help but think that if I too had all the money in the world, and the opportunity to jet off to the Caribbean on a whim, I'd still find myself drawn back to this unspoiled beauty time and time again.

Writing helps me deal with my anxieties. I'm accessing my deepest fears

bases her thrillers on real life

Bestselling British author C.L. Taylor tells HANNAH STEPHENSON how an abusive ex, toxic friendships and her own deep-seated fears have all inspired her thrilling novels

CALLY Louise Taylor is the first to admit she uses a lot of her own fears to send shivers up the spines of her readers, in her tense psychological thrillers.

Her novels – The Accident, The Lie, The Missing and The Escape – have all become hits, selling more than a million copies in the UK alone, while two have been optioned for TV.

The bestselling author, who writes as C.L. Taylor, explains: "Writing helps me deal with my anxieties. You are accessing your deepest fears, but when you're done, it's very freeing because you've worked through that fear and put it behind you."

She wrote about a missing child (The Missing) when her son Seth was a toddler; The Lie centred on a female friends who turn against each other, something she has also experienced; and her first psychological thriller, The Accident, featured an obsessive ex-boyfriend, inspired by her own experience before she met her current partner, Chris.

"Before Chris, I'd been in a four-year emotionally abusive relationship and there was a fear – because I was settled with someone else and we had a baby – that this person from my past would somehow reappear and destroy that happiness."

In The Accident, the fictional ex is violent and sexually abusive. This wasn't the case in real life for Cally, but, she explains, the abuse took other forms.

"In my real relationship, he was very manipulative, judgemental and controlling. I went into the relationship with very high esteem and confidence and by the end of it, I was walking on eggshells," Cally, 44, recalls. "He was very jealous, controlling and paranoid."

She tried to leave many times, but he talked her back and made excuses for his behaviour, she says. "When I finally did decide to leave him, he turned up on my doorstep in Brighton and just continually rang the bell for about 15 minutes. It was horrible."

"I was worried that he could turn. You often hear that people go from being emotionally abusive to physically abusive. I was genuinely worried about what he might do."

In the end, it took a stern phone call from her father to warn him off, threatening to call the police if he didn't stop harassing her.

"It was really scary. It fuelled my first book."

She has now changed tack, choosing real news stories on which to base her fictional crime, having rid herself of her own demons.

Her fifth psychological thriller, The Fear, was sparked by the case of teacher Jeremy Forrest, who triggered an international manhunt when he went on the run to France with a 15-year-old pupil in 2012.

"It wasn't so much about how he groomed her but what her life would be like afterwards. I'm really interested in how crime affects ordinary people," Cally notes of how the story informed her novel.

"That would have been her first experience of love, in a twisted way. When she meets other men, how is she going to respond to them? Is it going to feel less exciting?"

Her novel, The Fear, sees 14-year-old Lou run away to France with her 31-year-old teacher, who has clearly groomed her. When he begins to show his more aggressive side, she finally contacts the police.

Fast-forward and Lou is now 32, her life in tatters, when she resolves to return home to confront the man for the damage he has caused. Discovering that he is now focusing his attention on a 13-year-old girl, she must do something about it.

"Although Lou is originally his victim, she ends up locking him in a cage, so it's more about empowering a female heroine," says Cally.

Born in Worcester, Cally has been writing since she was eight, when she sent a little manuscript to Ladybird publishers and duly received her first rejection.

"I wrote terrible poetry in my teens and then dabbled with short stories in my 20s. Then, when I was 33, one of my best friends from school had a brain aneurysm and died. It was a huge wake-up call for me and made me realise you don't necessarily have all the time in the world, and if you've got something you want to pursue, you've got to do it. I wrote like a woman possessed after that."

At the time, she was single, living in a one-bedroom flat in Brighton, with a full-time job in IT working as a web developer in an e-Learning company. She wrote after work and at weekends.

She found herself an agent and her first two books, written under the name of Cally Taylor, were both rom-coms. They did well in China and Hungary, but not in the UK.

"It was towards the end of the Bridget Jones boom. I'd just had my son, Seth, (now six) and my editor said the age of chick lit was over and we needed deeper reads. I felt a bit lost, really. I almost felt like my career had ended before it had begun."

But having seen Before I Go To Sleep, the hugely successful debut novel by SJ Watson which was made into a film starring Colin Firth and Nicole Kidman, she felt the industry was on the verge of a big boom in psychological thrillers.

Her first, The Accident, became the 10th bestselling debut novel of 2014, selling five times as many copies as her second rom-com. Cally had found her niche.

Her next book, The Lie, became her first Sunday Times bestseller and topped the Amazon charts for three months. Subsequent novels have followed suit.

Her literary success has changed her life, she reflects, albeit fairly modestly; she lives in a three-bedroom terraced house in Bristol and still has a mortgage.

"I was able to give up the day job. I'd always dreamed of working from home with a dog at my feet, and now I've got the dog as well."

■ The Fear by C.L. Taylor is published by Avon priced £7.99.

RED CLOCKS by Leni Zumas

The Borough Press, £16.99, ebook £1.99
WOMEN leading lives of quiet, and not-so-quiet, desperation are at the heart of Leni Zumas' dystopian novel.

The book is set in a United States in which abortion is banned and IVF has been made illegal. Four women try to make sense of these new rules and the effects they have on their lives: One sets out on a dangerous journey in the hope of making it across the Canadian border, where abortions are still available, while another longs to have a baby but can't. And in between, we follow a fifth woman who has her own battles to fight.

Together, the five stories form a deeply touching exploration of women's lives past and future.

THE IMMORTALISTS by Chloe Benjamin
Tinder Press, £16.99, ebook £6.99

In her second novel, Chloe Benjamin weaves an ambitious family saga that spans several decades.

The premise is intriguing: How would you live your life if you knew the day you were going to die? This is the problem troubling the four Gold children, after a mysterious gypsy reads their fortunes in a New York apartment in 1969. Although you may take away a lesson on how to live life to the full, it's hard not to finish the book hoping you're never given advance warning of your death.

SAL by Mick Kitson

Canongate, £12.99, ebook £7.49

THE eponymous teenage heroine of this novel, who is on the run from the drab, chaotic lives of her alcoholic mother and her drug-dealing partner, steps into another world in Scotland's last wilderness.

Kitson's ability to combine the mundane and harrowing with an uplifting, giddy trapeze through the great outdoors and characters who take you with them, belies the fact this is his first venture into fiction. An inventive, memorable and soul-stirring read.

FEEL-GOOD BAKES

JERRELLE GUY IS THE BLOGGER AND BAKER EXTRAORDINAIRE, WHO WILL HELP YOU DIG DEEP THROUGH FOOD. ELLA WALKER FINDS OUT HOW

SNAP TO IT

COCOA GINGERSNAP COOKIES (MAKES 30)

"IT'D be a shame not to celebrate the glorious 'snap' of a gingersnap," says Jerrelle. "The sound that resonates in your jaw toward the back of your skull."

"I spent a chunk of my childhood so obsessed with that sound. I'd finish off a whole bag, sometimes in under an hour."

INGREDIENTS

84g softened butter or virgin coconut oil; 200g granulated sugar; 2tsp vanilla extract; 1tsp packed fresh grated ginger; 1tsp packed orange zest; 1 large egg (or 80g vegan flax egg); 60g molasses; 180g whole wheat flour; 60g cacao powder or cocoa powder; 2tsp baking soda; 2tbsp ground ginger; 1tbsp ground cinnamon; 1tsp salt; Cane sugar, for rolling

METHOD:

1. Preheat the oven to 375°F (190°C or gas mark 5). Position two oven racks in the center of the oven, and line two baking sheets with parchment.

2. In a large mixing bowl, cream the butter, granulated sugar, vanilla, grated ginger and orange zest until very fluffy, about three minutes. Slowly add the egg/flax egg and molasses and continue to beat until creamy.

3. Sift in the flour, cacao powder, baking soda, ginger, cinnamon and salt and beat until just combined. Let the batter sit for 10 mins.

4. Roll 2.5cm balls of dough in your palms, and then into the cane sugar to coat. Place the cookies on the baking sheet with about two to three inches between each one, and bake for 15-20 minutes, or until cooked and crispy. Remove from the oven and allow to cool for five minutes. Transfer to a wire rack to cool completely, at least one hour, best overnight uncovered, before eating so they make a snap.

YOU may not have heard of food writer and stylist Jerrelle Guy yet, but once you see her debut cookbook, Black Girl Baking, you'll want to jump right into it.

Packed with recipes that are both decadent and vegan-friendly – from banana bread to a fudgy flourless brownie pie – the US-based baker, born in South Florida, grew up watching the Food Network ("It was my Saturday morning cartoon"), studied gastronomy at Boston University, and writes recipes alongside her partner, Eric, on their blog Chocolate For Basil.

Here, the 27-year-old tells us about her love of food...

Why did you want to write Black Girl Baking?

"BECAUSE it was my reality, and I wanted to share what I'd learned about myself, food, African American food-ways and my spirituality. It just felt right and honest, and a creative way to tell my story. I also hadn't heard a lot of people talking about baking or blackness the way I was experiencing it."

What was inspiring you when you sat down to piece the book together?

"I WAS inspired by #blackgirlmagic and was thinking about merging the food world with this virtual movement that honoured the natural beauty of black women as they exist, without comparison, in the social landscape. I thought it was fitting, especially during a time when blackness was feeling so undervalued; to stand up boldly and claim myself and my body in an unapologetic and loving way felt necessary.

"Black women have so much to bring to the table – and have historically built the table American food rests on – and those contributions should be acknowledged and celebrated."

What do you want people to take from the book?

"I'D LIKE for them to be adventurous in the kitchen, make mistakes with self-compassion, explore, get lost and find themselves, and be inspired to do their own soul-searching through cooking and experimentation, without getting caught up in perfection."

"For me, baking should be more about the process and about enjoying the solo journey in the kitchen; everyone's response to your masterpiece can be the icing, but the real work happens in solitude – you gotta do the dirty work on your own."

How would you describe your style in the kitchen?

"PRETTY loose, partly chaotic, but also methodical, messy, creative, imperfect – and I use my bare hands as often as possible."

What makes the process of baking powerful for you?

"IT PUTS me in touch with the rawest part of myself. Baking also makes me feel rich and fancy because, since I was a little girl, I associated fresh baked things with abundance."

What would you say to people who find the thought of baking stressful?

"FOCUS on the process and get lost in that."

"Whatever you make will taste exactly like how you are feeling when you make it, so stop feeling stressed and stiff and just let yourself feel good."

"Want to try Jerrelle's recipes for yourself? Here are three to try at home."

■ Black Girl Baking by Jerrelle Guy is published by Page Street Publishing, £16.99.

EASTER is upon us and I hope you have lovely things planned with family and friends.

I'll be revising for a wine exam, but you can't have everything.

Oh, hang on, there will be wine "to taste" so that's a bonus.

Whatever your plans, here's a selection of wines to try.

■ A couple of... wines from the Co-op for when friends pop up unexpectedly this weekend.

They'd be great with a fish dish too – the wines, not the friends. The Co-operative Truly Irresistible Chenin Blanc 2017 (£6.99, 13% abv) is an ideal wine now the weather is warming up. The grapes grow on ancient parcels of bush-vines sourced from Darling which is an hour's drive from

RAISE A GLASS

WITH JANE CLARE

Cape Town and they benefit from the cooling influence of the South Atlantic Ocean. It is a light, refreshing wine with notes of crisp apple, ripe pear and a sunshine peep of tropical fruit.

The Co-op Irresistible Marsanne, left (75cl, £7.99) was created by Jean-Claude Mas from grapes grown in the Languedoc in the south of France. It has aromas of pears and honey, a hint of nectarine, and then vanilla. There's a subtle creaminess on the palate and a good kick of acidity.

■ A couple of... Australian chardonnays with just the hint of oak for a delicious weekend roast chicken. Tesco Finest Yarra Valley Chardonnay (£11, 12.5% abv) is fermented and aged in oak barrels and has a beautiful balance of acidity and tropical fruit with a delicate creaminess and a touch of spice.

I guess overly oaked Australian chardonnay ruined the grape for many, but winemakers in Oz are toning down the oak and creating chardonnays of subtlety and elegance.

Here's another one. McGuigan Shortlist Chardonnay 2016 (RRP £14, Sainsbury's, 13% abv). It's a few years since I tried this wine and I'd forgotten its delicious complexity. It is made from grapes grown in the cool climate of the Adelaide Hills which creates a fresh, zingy wine.

Fermentation in oak takes hold naturally – via wild yeast on the grapes and in the winery – and the wine is stirred on the lees for eight months. All this delivers a multi-layered wine with lemon, dried honey, grilled pineapple, dried apples, vanilla and herbs.

■ A couple of... reds for your Easter Sunday lamb. Seascope Malbec 2017, right (£8, Booths, 14.5% abv) hails from South Africa and is part of a new Capeography range created by Boutinot. The company is celebrating South African vineyards from inland (Landscape) to altitude (Cloudscape) and coastal which is this range, Seascope.

The wine has aromas of plums, cold tea and pepper. A strange mix, but this is an easy-drinking medium-bodied wine not a punchy malbec from Argentina.

I'll nip now to Aldi and the Haupapa Central Otago Pinot Noir (£8.99, 13% abv) which is one of their Easter limited edition buys. I loved this wine. It has a nose that keeps on delivering, with eucalyptus, raspberry, gentle red fruits, a peep of prunes, black cherry and a seam of earth. It is named after the weather in Central Otago the world's southernmost wine-making region in New Zealand.

INGREDIENTS

For the pastry: 120g whole wheat pastry flour, plus more for dusting; ½tsp salt; 84g cold butter, cut into 1.3cm cubes; 45ml cold buttermilk
For the filling: 355ml buttermilk; 75g cane sugar; 2tsp vanilla extract; ¼tsp salt; 30g plain flour
For the top layer: 72g cane sugar; Fresh berries (optional)

METHOD

1. In a mixing bowl, stir together the flour and salt, then toss in the cubes of cold butter. Using your thumb and index finger, squish the pieces of butter to flatten, and continue to break it up until half is crumbly, but not completely uniform in texture; you want chickpea-size nuggets of butter.
2. Add the cold buttermilk 1tbsp at a time, blending and gathering the mixture with your hands to form a dough.
3. Shape the dough into a disk, wrap in plastic wrap and refrigerate for at least 30 minutes. While the dough is chilling, prepare the filling.
4. Add the buttermilk, sugar, vanilla, salt and flour to a blender or food processor and blend until smooth. Let the filling rest while the dough chills. Have your pie dish ready.

5. Once the dough is chilled, roll it out on a lightly floured surface or between two sheets of greaseproof paper into a 50cm round. Wrap the dough around the rolling pin to help ease it into the dish, then crimp the edges into a pattern with fingers or a fork. Place the crust in the freezer to harden for 10-15 minutes.
6. Preheat the oven to 180°C/gas mark 4 with a rack in the centre. Remove the unbaked crust from the freezer and bake for 12-15 minutes, or until light golden brown. Remove from the oven and pour in the filling mixture. Bake for 25-30 minutes, or until the centre is set.

7. Remove from the oven. I like to serve mine warm, but if you prefer it chilled, place it in the fridge for at least two hours or until ready to serve.
8. When it's time to serve, add the sugar to a small saucepan and cook over medium heat until the sugar begins to brown and bubble. Swirl the pan to help any uncooked sugar liquify and cook for a few seconds, then pour out over the cold pie.
9. Working quickly, carefully tilt the pie dish to evenly distribute the browned sugar over the top. Allow to cool and harden for five minutes, and serve immediately by cracking the top and slicing. Top with berries, if desired.

INGREDIENTS

295ml warm oat or nut milk; 50g sugar; 1½tsp active dry yeast; 360g bread flour, plus more for dusting; ¾tsp salt; 36g peanut butter powder; 6-8tbsp your favourite jam
 To serve: Banana; Honey

METHOD

1. In a small bowl, combine the milk with 25g of the sugar, then sprinkle the yeast over the top and let it sit and bloom until a thick cap of froth is formed, five to 10 minutes.
2. In a stand mixer with a dough hook attachment, combine the flour and salt. Add the remaining 25g sugar along with the bloomed yeast and peanut butter powder.
3. Knead the mixture for three to four minutes, or until it turns into a springy dough. Place the dough in a clean oiled bowl, cover with plastic wrap and a damp cloth and place it in a warm dark place to double in size, about 60-90 minutes.
4. Lightly flour a work surface and a rolling pin and have two 23x12.5cm oiled loaf pans lined with

READY FOR THIS JELLY?

PEANUT BUTTER JELLY BREAD (MAKES TWO 23cm LOAVES)

10cm-wide strips of parchment long enough to stretch across the width and up the sides of the pan with a little hanging over.
5. Unwrap the risen dough, punch it down in the center to release the air and roll it out to roughly a 40 x 75cm rectangle.
6. Spread the jam all over the surface, then roll the dough up tightly from the shorter end. Slice the log in half so you have roughly two 20cm-long rolls. Transfer them to the prepared loaf pans; if they're longer, compress the rolls slightly, like accordions, or tuck the ends under to fit.
7. Cover the bread again with plastic wrap and a warm damp dish towel and keep in a dark place to double in size, for another 60-90 minutes. The bread should peak out just slightly above the edges of the pan, or at least come up very close but not poof far over the edges.

8. Preheat the oven to 180°C/gas mark 4 and position an oven rack on the lower half of the oven.
9. Bake the loaves for 50-60 minutes, or until you can hear a hollow knock when you tap on the bottom of the baked loaf with your knuckle.
10. Transfer to a wire rack to cool for at least 20 minutes. Slice and serve with sliced banana and honey, if you like.

SOUND OUT

There would be a riot if I didn't play All Around The World!

Lisa Stansfield, above, whose new album Deeper, inset below, is released next month

A WONDERFULLY dirty laugh rings out from Lisa Stansfield at the end of one of the tracks of her forthcoming album, Deeper.

It's a glorious moment for the 51-year-old singer with the distinctive set of pipes. Her music has been filling dance floors and airwaves around the world since 1989 and the album opener, Everything, recently topped the UK soul charts.

"It's like being given a beautiful big kick with a soft shoe up the a," contends Lisa happily, as she points out that Deeper is the perfect album to play before a Friday night out – and the ideal Saturday morning comeback soundtrack.

Her eighth studio album was recorded with her husband and long-time song-writing partner Ian Devaney at their studio in Rochdale – "We're very self-contained," she laughs, "it's like our own bijou cottage industry" – and follows the success of Seven, four years ago.

The couple celebrate their 20th wedding anniversary this year, but have been together for 30 years and Lisa reveals there is no big secret to the success of their relationship, saying they just enjoy each other's company and have always worked well together right from the beginning.

The northern lass, who was born in Manchester, also took on the role of executive producer for Deeper and says working on the tracks reminded her of how they used to make the first albums.

"I'm so serious about this and

British soul singer Lisa Stansfield tells MARION McMULLEN the secret of touring success... a plate of steak and chips

I'm wearing all sorts of different hats," she says. "Creating this album was a wonderful adventure."

"I really believe there is special something in this record. I'm so excited to let it go out into the big wide world with pride."

Lisa's contribution to British soul is undeniable with a string of hit singles including All Around The World, All Woman and The Real Thing, plus many award-winning albums.

She has sold nearly 20 million records worldwide and had a string of international top 10 hits, but says she will never stop making music and touring because she just loves it so much.

"As long as I can and people still want me to do it, I'll be doing it,"

Lisa Stansfield on stage in Paris in June 1992

she smiles, "and no one is wailing 'Oh, not her again. They've let Stansfield out.'"

She will be back on tour – including dates in London, Birmingham and Gateshead – when her birthday comes around on April 11 and laughingly wails: "I always end up working on my birthday."

But she says she will be sticking to the bland and boring when it comes to eating on tour and dairy products will definitely be off the menu.

"It's bad for the voice," she says. "When I am working and singing there is a lot I can't eat like cream, milk and cheese. I have to make sure I've got a good voice for the concert."

"I also don't want to fall ill so I'll normally end up eating steak and chips wherever we go. You can't go far wrong with a big plate of steak and chips. It's a bit like Donald Trump eating McDonalds. I'm very satisfied if there's steak and chips around. I never have anything else."

"When we're touring we are all on the coach together and we sort of look after each other."

"It was hard work going on tour in the beginning, but now I know to expect the unexpected."

"Things can go wrong, but we're ready for them. If you can see the pitfalls coming then you can work around them."

"I don't have to tour. I'm really doing it because I love it and I'm excited people still want me to do it."

The Grammy nominated, multi-Brit, Ivor Novello and Silver Clef award winner describes the forthcoming concert dates as "a night out!" and is looking forward to playing old favourites as well as some of the new tracks from Deeper.

She adds: "The concerts will be a chance to truly let yourself go and forget about the every day. A fun show with seriously good music."

"I've been doing it for so long, but it's what I'll enjoy. I always play the hits especially you know what."

That would be All Around The World for those who cannot guess Lisa's biggest hit.

She admits: "There'd be a riot if I didn't do that. People sing it to me all the time. I've got in cabs and had drivers start to sing it to me."

The famous laugh roars out one more time as she says: "I just go 'oh, yeah good one,' but I don't sing it back to them."

■ Deeper is released on April 6 and the new tour begins on the same date. Go to lisa-stansfield.com for further details.

COURTNEY MARIE ANDREWS - MAY YOUR KINDNESS REMAIN

ANDREWS was raised in Phoenix, Arizona, a fast-growing desert sprawl that sees almost 4,000 hours of sunshine each year, more than any other major city in the world. But the darkness of depression and sorrow pervades her world, and Andrews' gift for directing the daily struggle of life into song brings us to May Your Kindness Remain.

Shot through with compassion, hymnal qualities and an innate understanding of the human condition, it brings to mind the likes of Carole King or Linda Ronstadt. The stories told within tell tenderly and soulfully of a yearning for happier times. The remarkable manner of their telling petitions the listener to never lose faith.

RICK PARFITT - OVER AND OUT

THE late Status Quo star had been working on his solo album for some time. When this was unable to happen, other artists stepped in to help, among them Brian May and Chris Wolstenholme of Muse who, alongside Rick Parfitt Junior, finished it off. Two versions are available: the full production version and the more raw 'band mix'.

The songs themselves show clearly their heritage. Some wouldn't be out of place on one of Quo's earlier albums, Everybody Knows How To Fly being a prime example. Others, such as ballads like When I Was Falling In Love and Without You, hark back even further with a flavour of the 1960s.

This album stands as a memorial to one of rock music's icons.

THIS is clearly intended as a party starter, with almost all of the songs based on bombastic choruses and driving basslines: Paradise (the chorus of which cheekily cribs from Budapest) even has crowd call and response vocals.

Unfortunately, this doesn't entirely play to the singer's strengths.

Ezra's most distinctive asset, his deep and rich voice, is better suited to romantic balladry than Coldplay-esque stadium fillers.

Softer tunes such as the opener Pretty Shining People and the Paul McCartneyish Human Stand Out among the bangers which, all following a similar formula, are difficult to tell apart, and the album passes by pleasantly but indifferently.

WILL REARDON GETS SOME TOP TATTOO TIPS FROM ONE OF THE BEST ARTISTS IN THE BUSINESS

GETTING your first tattoo can be exciting, especially if you've been thinking about it for a long time. But even if you think you're 100% ready to go under the needle, having planned and contemplated the design for months – or even years – there might still be some factors you haven't considered.

"I've been getting tattoos for over 27 years now and I regret a lot of what I have from when I was younger," admits celebrity tattooist Kevin Paul, speaking at the launch of the new Nivea Men Body Shaving range. "In this day and age, we should be educated enough to not make mistakes, but we're not."

Kevin, the man responsible for more than 40 of Ed Sheeran's opinion-dividing tattoos (more on them later) and who has also inked the likes of Harry Styles and Rihanna, first picked up a tattoo gun aged 13, so he has a lot of experience to draw on.

Here, he shares eight things to consider when getting your first tattoo...

1 GO TO A REPUTABLE TATTOO ARTIST

"THE problem with a lot of tattooists is that they just want your money, so when you come in and ask for a pocket watch they'll put it on you and kick you out the door quick," Kevin warns. "I don't like to do that. I don't want you to be happy with your tattoo for a year or two or three years – I want you to be happy with it forever."

2 DON'T RELY ON WORD OF MOUTH TO FIND A TATTOOIST

"THERE'S nothing worse than word of mouth," says Kevin. "You go on Facebook and you'll see a status, 'does anyone know a good tattooist?' and half the people that are put on there I think are awful and I've had to cover up their work!"

"You need to properly research it. Look at tattoo conventions and see the level of art that is being done and look at the websites of tattoo conventions."

"You need to educate yourself on what's good and bad first of all, then look at good artists in your area."

3 FIRST TATTOOS SHOULD BE PERSONAL

"I ALWAYS say to everyone full stop:

THINK BEFORE YOU INK

Celebrity tattooist Kevin Paul

have something personal. Don't respond to fashion trends. Don't have what your favourite celebrity's got. Have something that's personal to you," Kevin advises.

"Obviously, everyone wants something different, whether it's for their parents or for their kids, or they've lost somebody. You (as a tattooist) have to find out why people want it and then once you know what they want, then you can give them some ideas."

"Every style can be adapted to something that's personal to you."

4 DON'T COPY DAVID BECKHAM (OR ANY OTHER CELEBRITIES)

"EVERYONE'S having pocket watches and clouds and angels (at the moment), and it's all because of David Beckham," Kevin says.

"Everyone's just copying Beckham, but realistically I don't think these people want the same tattoos as David Beckham, they just like the style of black and white."

Kevin says he's done seven or eight lion tattoos a week for the last three years, dating back to when he inked a huge lion design on Ed Sheeran's chest, but that was something that had a personal meaning for the singer.

"He sold out Wembley Stadium three nights on the trot and no one's ever done that single-handedly," he explains. "I was round his house for my wife's birthday and we were just chatting about him getting something to represent selling out (the shows), and then he said about the lion – because Wembley Stadium is (associated with) the three lions (of England). We did it the next day and weren't expecting the amount of attention it got."

5 DON'T USE GOOGLE FOR INSPIRATION

WHEN choosing a design, turning to Google is the "worst thing" you can do, Kevin Reckons.

"You'll be getting the same thing that every other doughnut has got!" he laughs.

"The problem is everyone wants tattoos but they're not artistic. They get on Google, look at pictures and go, 'That's what I want.' But they don't really want that."

Photos can be useful for showing a tattoo artist the style you'd like your tattoo in, but you should always have something unique and personal, Kevin advises.

6 COLOURED TATTOOS WILL FADE MORE QUICKLY

"IN TERMS of longevity, tattoos are definitely going to be best in black and grey, because every time they fade you can retouch them," Kevin says.

"It's a lot harder with colours, because colours get dull, so it's hard to bring it back to life and freshen it up again."

A tattoo artist at work

7 COVERED TATTOOS LAST LONGER

IF YOU don't want to have to go back for lots of touch-ups, choose a place on your body that isn't exposed, Kevin recommends.

"Places that are going to be in the sun are going to fade more over time," he says. "I've got tattoos on my head that are two years old and they've faded quite a bit, and then I've got tattoos on my arms and on my ribs that are still as bright as the day I got them."

8 DON'T WORRY ABOUT THE PAIN KEVIN has noticed a recent trend for people using numbing creams before they go under the gun to make it more bearable.

"That seems to be the next thing in tattoos," he says. "Generally, though, I don't think tattoos are that bad if you go to a good professional artist and you have it done properly, then realistically the pain isn't that bad."

"Ed Sheeran used to have seven or eight hours at a time, he can sit pretty well."

■ PS... My Perfect Colour Velvet Finish Foundation, £6, Primark

The range: A 16-shade collection, with a good mix of light to dark options. They're all SPF30 and give a full, velvety coverage. The verdict: "The coverage is pretty nice, although I'd say it's more matte than velvet. You might struggle if you have dry patches, but it didn't sit in any of my fine lines. It's probably geared more to younger skin, however, it's a good foundation."

■ L'Oréal Paris Infallible Longwear Shaping Stick Foundation, £8.99, Boots

The range: 12 shades (although mainly light tones) of creamy sticks, made for buildable coverage and a shine-free finish. The verdict: "I like the way this looks on – smooth and satiny. It's also super-easy to apply – great on the go. But coverage is quite sheer (even though it feels quite heavy), so I needed extra concealer around my eyes."

■ Perricone MD No Foundation Foundation Serum, £45, lookfantastic.com

The range: A lightweight formula made to give skin a dewy, luminous look, while improving texture instantly and over time.

The verdict: "It feels like a day cream, but it has a good amount of pigment and the finish is lovely and dewy. The only downside is it feels a little sticky, and I couldn't apply it with a brush as it clogged it. It's a lot of money, but it does work."

HOT HOUSE

NEW HOME WITH LARGE GARDEN

The rare combination of a new-build home with a large family garden has come on to the market. The property on the Newhall development in Harlow has a beautifully-landscaped rear garden which measures approximately 40ft x 45ft.

It contains two circular lawn areas with shingle borders and a paved patio area which runs the full width of the property.

It would make an ideal area for entertaining now that the lighter nights are here.

You enter the three-bedroom detached property through an oak-floored entrance hall. Adjoining it is a downstairs cloakroom containing a toilet and vanity basin.

A full-height contemporary window to the front gives the sitting room a light and airy feel. The room also contains double glazed French doors leading to the front and rear gardens.

The modern kitchen has an integrated four-ring Whirlpool gas hob with oven and grill beneath. There is plumbing for a washer/dryer and space for a dishwasher, fridge and freezer.

The dining room is also oak floored and has double glazed doors out on the rear garden. From this room a wooden staircase rises to the first floor landing.

Upstairs there are three bedrooms - one of which is currently being used as an office. The master bedroom has an impressive en-suite shower room comprised of a thermostatically-controlled shower, toilet, hand wash basin and heated towel rail.

Meanwhile the main family bathroom has a wooden panelled bath with fitted shower attachment, toilet, hand wash basin and Velux window to the rear.

The front of the property is accessed via a wooden gate leading on to a small paved front garden. The garden is enclosed and screened by six foot high fencing - making it secluded and private.

The house has two parking spaces, one to either side of the property plus a further parking space directly to the front.

The property is on the market for £429,950 through Wright & Co in Church Street, Sawbridgeworth. To request further details or to arrange a viewing call 01279 600400 or visit <http://www.wright-co.co.uk>

HOP TO IT

It's time to get ready for the Easter Bank Holiday feasts and fun. Here, GABRIELLE FAGAN offers her guide to three key decor themes

Easter is a time for celebrations, from egg hunts to gatherings of family and friends for a slap-up feast. It makes the occasion even more special if you set the scene with some spring decor touches.

There are three key looks to choose from. Get down with the kids and opt for pretty pastels, with a generous helping of fluffy bunnies (rabbits rule this year) and chicks, or be inspired by nature (this season's all about the outdoors bursting into life and colour).

Alternatively, go grown-up with a sophisticated setting and simple, subtle touches, that just pay a nod to the festival.

With Easter celebrations almost as big a deal as Christmas now, there's a brilliant selection of homeware and accessories to fill your nest with. Here are some of our favourites...

LET RABBITS RULE IN ROOMS

Make the Easter Bunny the star of the show. Add to the fun with a wall display of family photos and embellish each face with cut out paper rabbit ears, and a nose and whiskers.

Let children create their own rabbit 'burrow' using a tent, or rig up a sheet draped over chairs for a den, where they can retreat and enjoy their egg-hunt hauls.

Follow the Scandinavian tradition and decorate tree branches, either gathered from the garden and sprayed white, or buy a ready-made Easter tree.

Hobbycraft has decorative white twig trees from £18 each that would be ideal for the task. Hang with tiny ornaments, from bunnies and birds, to eggs and chicks. Garlands and bunting will add to the atmosphere.

CONJURE A BLOOMING NATURAL SETTING

Spring is all about waking up from winter's dark days and welcoming new growth and life. Bringing nature-inspired elements into decor represents the season and Easter perfectly.

If the weather's not co-operating and your garden's bare, it's still easy to conjure a fresh setting of blooms and foliage. Feature small hand-tied bunches of fresh flowers in vases or clear glass jars, or create a display with faux blooms hanging above a table as a focal point.

Lay an artificial grass table runner down the centre as a finishing touch. Faux effects are so realistic now, it's sometimes barely possible to distinguish them from the real thing.

Add to the theme with a table centre piece – either a pretty Easter wreath or faux birds' nest, and a scattering of animal ornaments. Chickens & Carnations placemats (£35 for set of four) and matching chicken coasters (£15 for set of four), from Thornback & Peel, would make a lovely addition.

LAY AN EL-EGG-ANT TABLE

For a sophisticated setting, move away from pastels and cuteness and focus instead on a collection of beautiful eggs framed in a garland of seasonal flowers.

Enhance the effect by tying a hanging egg decoration to the back of each chair with a name label attached, and add a couple of other tiny eggs beside the placemats, or in a bowl, for each guest.

CAROLINE'S CORNISH COASTAL HIDEAWAY...

Caroline Quentin knows a thing or two about unusual properties.

In the BBC show The World's Most Extraordinary Homes, which she fronts with architect Piers Taylor, the actress has explored everything from a home built into a cliff in southern Spain to an underground house in New Zealand.

But what about her own interior tastes? Does she go for avant-garde style or a more traditional finish?

If Caroline's Cornish holiday home is anything to go by she favours a clean, contemporary look with lots of light.

Her beautiful coastal property on the Lizard Peninsula has just gone onto the market offering an airy, open-plan feel and stunning sea views.

The cedar-clad detached bungalow has three bedrooms and a large open plan kitchen/diner, all set in extensive,

Open plan: The living area private gardens leading down to the Helford River.

Originally built in the 1980s, the bungalow underwent a complete redesign in 2014 to create the perfect family holiday home.

Caroline, her husband Sam Farmer - whom she met on the set of Men Behaving Badly 19 years ago - and their two children Emily and William enjoy spending holidays at the seaside property.

When Caroline is busy working, the bungalow has been rented out as a holiday let.

"The property has such a wonderful setting," says Dave Rideout of estate agent Heather & Lay. "It's very quiet with stunning views. It really is the ultimate 'get away from it all' property."

Caroline's Cornish home is for sale at £695,000 via Heather & Lay (01326 319767).

BRUSH WITH FAME

When you think of the artist John Constable, rural scenes spring to mind of green rolling fields dotted with grazing livestock and contented farm workers.

His world-famous artworks celebrated the English countryside and now change hands for millions of pounds.

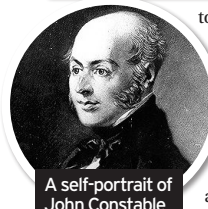

Fans of the artist's work flock to the area known as 'Constable Country' where he grew up on the Suffolk-Essex border, keen to experience for themselves the landscape which inspired Constable to create beautiful paintings such as The Hay Wain and Dedham Vale.

Less well-known is the fact that Constable also had a strong association with Hampstead, an arty area of North London where he spent his final years.

Needing a base in the capital from which to negotiate with prospective buyers, Constable set up home with his wife Maria and their son in a street called Well Walk. The Georgian townhouse in which he lived from 1827 until his death in 1837 has now come onto the market for the first time in 30 years.

With a smart blue front door and a matching blue plaque testifying to his residency, the Grade II listed home has four bedrooms, lots of period features and a walled garden.

"We expect its appeal to be far-reaching, taking in those seeking a family home with straightforward access to amenities, transport and great schools, as well as the prospect of living in the former home of one of the nation's greatest artists," says Peter Brooks of Savills estate agent.

Constable's former home is for sale priced £4m via Savills (0207 7472 5000).

If you've ever fancied having a taste of James Bond's glamorous lifestyle, now's your chance. His London home has hit the market.

The house, widely believed to have been the inspiration for 007's pad in the Ian Fleming books, is on Royal Avenue in Chelsea and is now for sale priced £6.75m.

The five-bedroom house has six floors and includes a contemporary kitchen, dining room, sitting room and study, plus two-storey conservatory which links the ground and first floors.

Upstairs, there is a L-shaped drawing room with floor-to-ceiling windows; just the place to enjoy a martini while looking out across Royal Avenue.

Sean Connery as James Bond

HEAVEN FOR FANS OF 007

The current owners are obviously Bond fans. A poster for Never Say Never Again, featuring Sean Connery as 007, adorns one living room wall.

Royal Avenue was also a film location for 1963's The Servant, which starred Dirk Bogarde, James Fox and Sarah Miles.

In Fleming's famous spy novels, Bond refers to his home as 'just off the King's Road' and - as London addresses go - his chosen location is hard to beat.

Royal Avenue was designed by Christopher Wren on behalf of William III in the 1690s. The stylish shops and famous restaurants of the King's Road are just a short walk away from this beautiful tree-lined avenue.

This property is for sale via Knight Frank (020 7661 1794).

HARDLY A HOUSE OF HORROR

The moment the monster comes to life in 1931 classic horror film Frankenstein is one of Hollywood's iconic moments.

The actor with the bolt through his neck and the squarest of square foreheads was British performer Boris Karloff.

Real name William Henry Pratt, Karloff was born in Camberwell in 1887, the youngest of nine children.

The Cadogan Square apartment

He appeared in more than 80 movies before finding stardom as Frankenstein's monster.

"I was an obscure, struggling actor then I got this marvellous opportunity handed to me and my career took off," said

Karloff, who died in 1969.

After living in Hollywood, Karloff returned to London in 1959 to Cadogan Square in Knightsbridge.

An apartment within his former home is now on the market for £2.85m.

The two-bedroom flat lies within a Grade II listed red brick building in one of London's finest garden squares and offers almost 1,900 sq ft of accommodation.

It's on the market via JLL (020 7306 1616)

TV'S PHIL HAS ALL THE INFO

EVER wished you knew a bit more about a property before you put an offer in on it? Finding out about local planning applications or how much the sellers paid for it could be useful when committing to a purchase.

But information can be thin on the ground. Not any longer, though.

Location, Location, Location TV show presenter Phil Spencer has launched a service that offers home buyers the inside track about any property in the UK, designed to help them secure their dream home.

Phil Spencer with one of his Move iQ information packs

Launched by Phil at the Ideal Home Show and called Move iQ, his company charges £15 for a tailored information pack that includes an estimate of a property's value, photos, the previous price paid for the property by the seller, details of local planning changes and applications, information from the property's Title Register as well as boundary plans.

Phil, who owns homes both in Wandsworth in London and in Sussex, says he thinks the housing market is unfairly stacked in the seller's favour and wants to redress this imbalance with unbiased advice.

"I want to arm anyone moving with the tools, knowledge and confidence to secure the right property and get the best deal possible," says Phil.

"Equally, knowing vital property-specific and local area information about somewhere you're set to call 'home' is too often overlooked.

"Having all the facts to hand and knowing what to do with them, is essential when buying."

RETURN OF THE GSI

It's been 20 years since drivers last saw a GSi-badged Vauxhall but the sporty tag is back with a pair of go-faster Insignia models that effectively replace the previously labelled VXR Insignia Supersport models.

Available as either a five-door Grand Sports Hatchback or Sports Tourer (i.e. estate) these newcomers are now the performance flagship cars for Vauxhall and although annual sales will be small – around 500 a year – it puts Vauxhall back up amongst that small band of car makers who offer genuine performance four-wheel-drive versions of their everyday top end models.

There's a choice of power trains too with a two-litre 256bhp turbocharged petrol or a 207bhp biturbo diesel with the latter expected to be the best seller and in Sports Tourer form, which is the subject of this first drive.

Coming in at £34,475 on the road this oil burner estate may seem a tad too expensive but taking a closer at the huge amount of standard kit on board along with its specially developed engineered chassis and power train and compare it with rivals then it's exceptionally good value for money.

Sitting 10cm lower and some 60kg lighter than its predecessor Vauxhall and their sister Open engineers claim it to be 'a performance car with a dynamic chassis' and driving it then it's easy to see why because it's a vastly improved ride and drive over its predecessor with a much firmer and controlled feel out on the road when driven fast and it's more comfortable.

With a suspension stiffened up to 40 per cent more it also has Vauxhall's FlexRide on board which offers three different driving modes at the push of a button – normal, touring or sport.

Another key element to its improved all round driveability is that there's now a twin-clutch differential on the rear axle which allows for more torque (i.e. pulling power) to be sent to the outside rear wheels during cornering.

Result here is for far better cornering giving passengers a more comfortable ride while for the driver there's far more feel and more confidence in the car when driving it in a sporty manner, such as on this first drive round twisty and undulating country bends and hills around the Leicestershire countryside where it excelled.

Obviously driving in the sport mode does give that little bit extra sporty feel to the drive but equally leaving it in normal mode, as it was on most of the 100-odd mile test run, again the response and comfort was satisfying without any trials or tribulations and with that four-wheel-drive system working so efficiently.

The bit turbo diesel engine was quiet and impressive throughout and the Brembo brakes more than did their job when needing to stop quickly – incidentally all these GSi models have autonomous emergency braking.

The diesel estate drives nicely, exceptionally quiet and it's certainly not sluggish whilst official fuel consumption on the combined cycle claim 39.8mpg the first drive test returned just 32.5mpg. All GSi models sit on 20-inch wheels along with Michelin Pilot Sport 4S tyres which again helps towards such an impressive driving experience in my book.

The eight-speed automatic gearbox offers quick and smooth up and down gear change left in sole auto mode but even when the driver opts to use the steering wheel mounted paddles to change gear again it's really is smooth and quick with no lag as so often with that kind of gear change.

From the outside the GSi Tourer looks smart enough with its bespoke bumpers and sills, LED headlights and shiny twin exhaust pipes.

Inside the cabin is well laid out, nothing pretentious but with an impressive list of standard equipment on board including an easy to use eight-inch touch screen navigation with multi-function trip computer while the head-up display on the windscreen in front of the driver's head is also impressive with different data instantly coming up at the push of a button, like speed and fuel consumption.

The cabin is roomy while the sports seat, which are leather upholstered, have been designed this time around by their own specialist engineers and not taken off the shelf from outside supplier Recaro. They give excellent all round lumbar support and although on the firm side they are not by any means uncomfortable sitting in the front or rear seats.

Drivers will like the flat-bottomed style steering wheel and for an estate car this GSi has excellent boot space of up to 560 litres.

The impressive and quite lengthy standard features in the car are excellent and include a Bose premium sound, heated front seats, cruise control, rain-sensing wipers, electronic stability control, hill assist start and six airbags, plus front and rear parking sensors – although disappointingly the rear parking camera is a £350 optional extra which is a bit mean on a car of this nature, quality and price.

Overall an impressive and welcome return for the GSi badge and it's easy to see why the diesel version will be the more popular because it's exceptionally refined, offers a real sensible sports performance without being outlandishly expensive – the ideal long distance cruiser.

ROAD TEST: Lexus CT 200h Luxury by Ian Donaldson

A LIFE OF LUXURY

AT A GLANCE

■ Model: Lexus CT 200h Luxury
 ■ Price: £25,995
 ■ Mechanical: 134bhp, 1,798cc, 4cyl petrol engine and electric motor driving front wheels via CVT automatic gearbox
 ■ Max speed: 112mph
 ■ 0-62mph: 10.3 seconds
 ■ Combined mpg: 68.9
 ■ Insurance group: 21
 ■ CO2 emissions: 94 g/km
 ■ BIK rating: 17%
 ■ Warranty: 3 years/60,000 miles

An amazing number of people decide their next car without taking a test drive - a bit like buying a house by peering through the windows and not going inside.

Well, the smallest Lexus you can buy would make such a fine first impression you might reach for a credit card without even starting the engine.

Which, if you did, would literally make no noise anyway - this is a hybrid machine that relies on silent electric power for gentle progress before a petrol engine cuts in.

You'd be impressed by the obvious precision showing in every corner of the car, helping make it look worth more than its sub-£26,000 asking price.

There's a gentle sense of opulence throughout the interior, where nicely judged alloy-look trim and soft touch plastic mix to provide an all over feel that this is a smart place to while away the miles.

Add £995 worth of leather upholstery and it takes on the ambience of something much dearer.

The outside makes a bit of a statement too, especially that huge radiator grille that helps you identify any approaching modern Lexus from half a mile away.

Before you drive off there's the list of goodies to consider. Standard kit on this Luxury spec model (one up from the £23,495 CT 200h SE base car) includes heated front seats, parking sensors, navigation with full European mapping and lots of safety systems, plus adaptive cruise control.

Interestingly, the 17-inch alloy wheels that come with the car can be swapped at no cost for smaller 16in versions that improve both fuel consumption and tailpipe emissions but might make the Lexus look a little less handsome.

It might also take you only a mile or so on a typically unkept British road to hope that the smaller wheels would improve the ride as well. They probably would; at present things never settle down enough to match the expectations of that lovely interior.

It doesn't take much longer to wish Lexus did not persist with its curious control for programming the satellite navigation. The small moveable pad between the front seats is a poor substitute for the simple rotating wheel favoured (rightly) by the opposition.

Another Lexus feature of long standing is a CVT transmission that used to order the engine to hum annoyingly away if you asked for anything more than a hearse-like getaway.

Thankfully, Lexus has just about banished that nuisance and the CT 200h get along well enough, thank you, and in some silence. Those optional smaller wheels might make things quieter still on rougher surfaces, though.

No complaint about economy, even with the more macho alloys attached. The test car showed an encouraging 52.8mpg after several hundred miles of mixed workout.

A dashboard dial tells you the big battery beneath the boot floor is recharging when you lift off the throttle, or brake, and this 'free' energy means stretches of low speed town work are silent and truly Lexus-like.

ROAD TEST: Dacia Logan MCV Ambiance SCe 75 by Peter Keenan

IMPRESSIVE LOGAN

AT A GLANCE

- Model: Dacia Logan MCV Ambiance SCe 75
- Price: £8,695
- Mechanical: 73bhp, 1,000cc, 3cyl petrol engine driving front wheels via 5-speed manual gearbox
- Max speed: 98mph
- 0-62mph: 14.7 seconds
- Combined mpg: 52.3
- Insurance group: 2
- CO2 emissions: 120g/km
- BiK rating: 23%
- Warranty: 3 years/60,000 miles

Want a new car that's modern and spacious for a bargain basement price-tag? Then look no further than the Dacia Logan MCV

The most affordable estate on sale in the UK actually belies its cheap as chips status thanks to the backing of owner Renault, whose back catalogue of interior fixtures and fittings ensure this Dacia is more than acceptable for the £7,295 needed to buy the entry-level Access model.

And indeed with impressive boot capacity and a cabin that can easily swallow five adults the Logan offers a lot of practicality and versatility for family motoring.

There is a huge amount of luggage space with 573 litres available with the rear seats in place. When the 60/40 split rear seatbacks are lowered this expands to a cave-like 1,518 litres.

This is no surprise when you know the letters tagged on to the end of the Logan name – MCV – stand for Maximum Capacity Vehicle.

There are lots of storage compartments and cup holders as well as a mobile phone pocket on the side of the front passenger seat. An illuminated glove box is handy while those in the rear get a bottle holder, rear door bins and seatback pockets to squirrel away the odds and sods that accumulate over time. The Logan is a refined beast with exterior noise by and large banished from a cabin that is well put together despite inevitably containing some cheaper plastics.

Yes the mid-range Ambiance model's interior is a tad plain but the layout of the Renault-sourced switches and dials is logical and for £8,695 it offers a modern look.

There is also a reasonable amount of kit with remote central locking, air con, digital radio, Bluetooth connectivity, and electric front windows included. Satin chrome used to frame the central console and instrument dials is a nice touch. And, following a recent revamp, the exterior is decent to look at as well with a nod to SUV design clear in the raised ride height, chrome-finish front grille, daytime running lights, eye-catching black wheelarches and underbody protection.

There are also natty fog lamps and satin roof bars in a package that looks ready to take a family on a hiking holiday.

Three engine choices are offered with power here provided by a 1.0-litre petrol engine, sourced from Renault, that offers decent fuel economy, thanks to stop/start technology, and is not as slow as a pedestrian 0-62mph time of almost 15 seconds would suggest.

That said the Logan is a comfortable rather than thrilling drive with a suspension set up to absorb the many humps and hollows littering our roads – although larger obstacles do make their presence felt in the cabin.

Safety is catered for by a raft of clever electronics to help keep you on the road as well as front and side driver and passenger airbags in case of accident.

There is also a tyre pressure warning light and hill start assist. A three-year, 60,000 mile warranty gives motoring peace of mind.

Relaunched by parent company Renault in 2004, Dacia has sold more than 100,000 cars in the UK since it launched here in 2013.

The Romanian company is hoping the latest Logan makes a big impact, providing the next instalment its British success story.

ROAD TEST: Alfa Romeo Giulia 2.2 Diesel Super by Mike Torpey

AT A GLANCE

- Model: Alfa Romeo Giulia 2.2 Diesel Super
- Price: £33,315
- Mechanical: 180bhp, 2,143cc, 4cyl diesel engine driving rear wheels via 8-speed automatic gearbox
- Max speed: 143mph
- 0-62mph: 7.1 seconds

- Insurance group: 26
- CO2 emissions: 109g/km
- BiK rating: 23%
- Warranty: 3 years/unlimited miles

GRACEFUL AND ELEGANT

The sports saloon scene hasn't exactly been awash with cool looking contenders in recent times.

It has left a big hole in the market for a manufacturer prepared to try and seduce buyers with some genuine sex appeal.

Problem is – that can lead to the heart ruling the head, and you ending up with something that hits a high note visually but falls flat when it comes to everything else.

This year's arrival of the Alfa Romeo Giulia has certainly put the cat among the pigeons and represents a real statement of intent from the Italian marque.

Their first SUV model, the Stelvio, arrived during the autumn to add even greater kudos to a brand that's brimming with confidence.

And rightly so – because the Giulia doesn't just look a million dollars, it's a hoot to drive, comes laden with feelgood factor and doesn't skimp on quality either.

Three engines are up for grabs in the form of a 2.0-litre petrol, a 2.2-litre diesel with choice of 150 or 180bhp of punch and a fiery 2.9-litre twin turbo V6.

This model featured the higher state of tune and has definite appeal for business users courtesy of its low 109g/km emissions rating.

We found the engine to be a tad noisy in urban conditions, though that's about the only criticism you can level at it.

That's because the car is not only swift and smooth – 0 to 62mph in just 7.1 seconds – but it has the most fabulous steering and a super slick eight-speed automatic gearbox.

This version also had adaptive dampers – an optional extra – which stiffens the body control as well as giant paddle shifts.

Whether it be on an urban or rural run, or opening up on faster roads, the Giulia really delivers, and we were surprised to find the average fuel figure was only ten short of the official return of 67.3mpg.

Inside, the Alfa comes with firm, supportive leather seats with the Alfa Romeo crest embossed in the front headrests while the dash area ahead is wide and flowing.

The flat-bottomed steering wheel with its alloy inserts and small incorporated Start/Stop button is one of the best around and the auto gearshift level falls nicely to hand.

As for passenger space it's plentiful for two in the back, though a wide transmission tunnel makes things awkward and uncomfortable in the centre rear position.

Standard kit includes the likes of 17-inch alloys, an

Alfa Connect 8.8-inch 3D Nav infotainment system, dual zone climate control, eight-speaker audio, Alfa's D.N.A. drive mode selector and a full suite of safety features. You also get a long, if quite shallow, boot.

Alfa Romeo has definitely produced a gem with the Giulia – it's packed with grace, elegance and poise.

Harlow club's young players put up a fight

PLAYERS from Harlow Judo Club were busy trying to collect more points towards a black belt grading as they took part in a Level Three competition at the K2 Leisure Centre in Crawley.

The event was well attended by clubs from all over the south east and the standard of competition was going to test the young Harlow team.

Four players, Eli Balski (aged eight), Thomas Norman (11), Owen Lambert (12) and Lewis Carter (13) were at the event and all returned home with a medal.

First up was Balski in the Minors AA category.

He listened well to instructions, but inexperience proved to get the better of him on this occasion. However he did win a bronze medal.

Also competing at the same time was Norman, in the Minors category. He put up a brave fight but despite losing in the first two rounds, won his last fight to take bronze.

Lambert and Carter both competed in the Pre-Cadet section in their individual weight groups at similar times, but head coach Mick Ellis was able to coach all his players despite all being on separate mats.

There was golden glory for Lambert, who proved his ability by winning all his fights in great style.

Carter, who was making his comeback to competition after having time out, didn't fail to impress. He also proved himself by taking a bronze medal, winning one of his fights with a superb Ippon.

"I am very impressed with my team, especially Eli and Thomas, competing at this high level," said Ellis.

"It isn't easy to compete but to step out and come back with a medal, I am very proud of them all."

Injury-hit side well beaten

HARLOW faced a near impossible task against London Two North East high-fliers Sudbury as their injury ravaged side went down 43-7.

After five minutes the Sudbury backs broke away to take the lead with a converted try. Harlow kept the visitors out for the next 25 minutes, stopping what looked like a certain try with powerful tackling on several occasions.

Eventually Sudbury broke through for two unconverted tries in quick succession to lead 17-0, and in the closing minutes of the half they added another converted try.

But Harlow were determined to reply, and a fierce period of play by their pack saw them force their way over the line, with open side flanker James Clark getting the touchdown.

Danny Smith converted and Harlow went in at the break trailing 24-7.

Having got on the scoreboard Harlow started the second half with determination.

For 30 minutes they defended their line and frequently closed in on the Sudbury five metre line.

But then Sudbury spun the ball wide and a 40 metre sprint saw them score under the posts for a converted score. In the closing minutes they added two more tries for a final score of 43-7.

Members take on run fest

HARLOW Running Club had several members at the Lee Valley Run Fest, featuring a half marathon and a 10k race, both starting and finishing at the Lea Valley White Water Centre in Waltham Cross.

In the half marathon, Spencer Brooks finished in 198th place out of 467 finishers in 1hr 53min 11sec. Dave Goosetree was 272nd in 2:00:11 and Holly Nairn 304th in 2:03:59.

The 10k event saw Alan Cootes finish in 84th place out of 469 finishers and third Vet 60 in 50:32.

He was followed by: Jane Evans 139th and third female Vet 50 in 55:35, Karen Moir 182nd in 57:26, Vanessa Bull 201st in 58:03, Louise Kedge 210th in 58:19, Dean Bull 217th in 58:22 (PB), Louise Peacock 323rd in 1:03:58, Paul Miles 325th in 1:04:03 (PB) and Lindsey Pearson 345th in 1:05:37 (PB).

Meanwhile, at the Colchester Half Marathon Nick D'Alton came home in 594th place out of 2778 finishers in 1:45:28, Laura Prime 988th in 1:52:42 (PB) and Brenda Clayton 2101st and first female Vet 65 in 2:15:58.

At the inaugural London Landmarks Half Marathon, Saira Muschamp finished in 1763rd place out of more than 10,000 finishers in 1:51:15.

At the Orion 15 Mile race, a very hilly, very muddy cross country race through Epping Forest, Alan Broughton finished in 66th out of 300 in 1:58:58.

Happy Hawks turn on style in key win

Boss Chapman delighted as relegation fears eased

HARLOW Town manager Danny Chapman was understandably beaming with delight after seeing his side turn on the style to pick up a vital three points against Leatherhead with a 2-1 win on Saturday.

"I think that's the best we've played in quite a while - we were in total control for the whole game," he said. "Even going in at half-time 2-0 up it could have been three or four more."

"We spoke to the boys before the game and said our performances have been good of late, but we just needed to cut out the sloppiness and I think that's exactly what we did."

"Even in the second half we didn't look troubled."

"We deserved a clean sheet, and it was a great performance and we thoroughly deserved three points."

Harlow made the best possible start when Matt Foy got his fifth for the club in the second minute, before Robbie Martin doubled the tally in the 18th minute.

Leatherhead threatened to make a comeback, but Aron Pollock's 91st minute goal was the only one they would score.

The game saw the debut of new signing Aaron Jones, and Chapman was pleased with his display.

"Aaron has been out in America for past year played a few games in MLS - he really impressed us in what he showed," said the Hawks boss.

"Paul Rodgers has a knee problem and will need an operation at the end of the season so we thought we might need cover in that area."

"He came in and was excellent,

I don't think he did anything wrong."

"Technically he's good and his delivery was great - we're really pleased with that signing."

Chapman added that they were still looking to add to the squad before the end of the month.

"We're trying to bring in one or two more players, but it's a difficult as players aren't looking to move at this time of season," he said.

"Injuries have been the story of our season."

Praise

Chapman singled out midfielder Sam Clarke for special praise.

"Sam was our best player he's been a massive bonus for us. As long as we can keep him fit and we produce similar performances to this then I think come April 28 we will be okay."

The result saw Harlow move up to 21st in the table, one point above Lowestoft, who beat 23rd placed Tooting and Mitcham.

Harlow are now six points above the dreaded 24th relegation spot, albeit having played two games more than the team occupying it, Burgess Hill.
